QUICK DEATH FOR CZOLGOSZ

The Electric Chair Awaits Assassin's Coming.

MOST HUMANE METHOD.

BARBAROUS EXECUTION OF CRIMINALS IN ANCIENT DAYS.

Description of the Appliance Used at Auburn Prison, to Which McKinley's Murderer May Be Dragged Oct. 28.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Leon Frans Czolgosz, assassin of President McKinley, is to be electrocuted on some day of the week beginning on the 28th of this month. There is not the slightest doubt that he will die on the morning of Monday, Oct. 28, the first day of the week set for his execution.

This assassin will be put to death by the most humane, and the quickest method of capital punishment.

Time was when the assassin of a ruler was dragged to pieces by four horses attached to his four limbs and driven in opposite directions. In some of the oriental countries to this day the most cruel and revolting tortures are reserved for those who even attempt the life of a potentate or are suspected of complicity in plots against him. Boiling in oil, drawing and quartering are among the least terrible of these punishments, while the lopping off of single members from the living body until death relieves the victim is a common punishment for notable crimes.

The Way in Which Czolgosz Will Die.

The condemned man will be led by guards into the death chamber in the Auburn penitentiary. Near the wall at one end of the room is an oak chair, constructed something after the manner of an easy chair, with broad wooden arms. It rests upon a rubber matting, which insulates it completely. Attached to the back of the chair is an adjustable board, against which Czolgosz will rest his back, and this board is equiped with a sliding rod to which is atached the "death mask," a strap which can be fastened around the head at the forehead. On the inner side of this strap are two small sponges, which press upon the temples and which are connected by wires with the rod in the back of the chair. This rod carries the electricity, conducted to it by heavy wires from the wall. There are straps fastened to the back of the chair to pas around the upper arms of the condemned man and hold the arms securely against the chair, other straps on the arms of the chair itself binding the forearms down and preventing the least struggle. Another stout strap or belt attached to the back of the chair passes across the abdo-

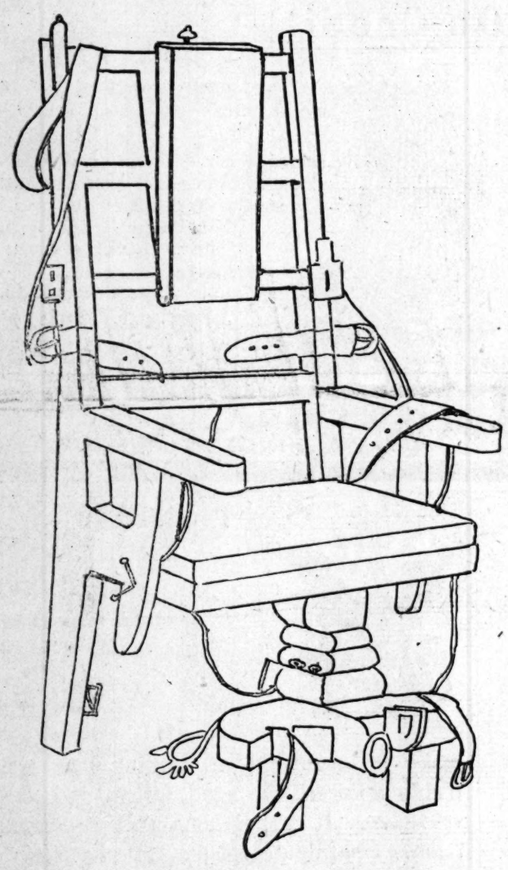
CHAIR OF DEATH FOR ASSASSIN CZOLGOSZ.



SWIFT, SURE AND PAINLESS.

The electric chair is of oak, with broad arms.

It rests upon a rubber matting which insulates it completely.

When seated in the chair the deathmask is fitted to the condemned man's head.

To the back of the mask is affixed a sliding rod, which carries the deadly current from wires passing through the wall.

The deathmask fits close to the temples by means of straps. The prisoner's arms and legs are also securely strapped to the chair.

Electrodes touch the condemned at these points—the temples, forehead and the calf of each leg.

The arrangement is such that when the current is turned on 2200 volts pass through his body.

In the 15th part of a second the occupant of the chair is dead.

TROOPS FAIL TO FIND MISS STONE

Bulgarian Battalion on the Trail of Brigands.

ONE OF THE LEADERS SHOT

REPORT SAYS HE WAS THE MURDERER OF STAMBOULOFF.

The American Consul at Constantinople Has Arrived at Sofia and Is Striving to Effect Missionary's Release.

SOFIA, Oct. 11.—Three battalions of the Sixth Bulgarian Infantry Regiment marched through the country between Dubnitza and Samokav and searched the villages of the Rilioklosters district, in one of which it was reported the brigands had concealed Miss Stone.

Col. Gaschoff, at the head of a searching party composed of 300 Bulgarian infantry and 500 dragoons, is scouring the ranges of Dospat and the Rhodopegelbirgen.

The American consul-general at Constantinople has arrived at Sofia with an evangelical pastor from Philippipolis as dragoman, and both are taking energetic steps with the Bulgarian government to effect Miss Stone's release.

The reputed leader of the gang who killed Stambouloff has met his fate. Suspected of being associated in the capture of Miss Stone, he was shot dead on the frontier near Kostendit.

Though £1000 reward has been placed on the head of the murderer of Stambouloff Hallo, the name under which he was known, was too influential a ruffian for the Bulgarian police to arrest.

Four additional brigands have been captured near Tschepino and a band of 20, fully armed men, were discovered near Dubnitza and driven into the mountains again.

CONDITIONS LESS HOPEFUL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The state department has heard again by cable from United States Consul-General Dickinson and Secretary of Legation Spencer Eddy, touching the progress of the negotiations looking to the release of Miss Stone. None of the details was made public, however, and all that can be gathered as to the status of the case is that the conditions are by no means as reassuring as were expected yesterday.

SOAP BURNS WERE FATAL.

John Edward Smith Fell Into Kettle of Boiling Liquid.

John Edward Smith, 6 years old, died at the City Hospital Friday morning from injuries received by falling in a pot of boiling soap at his home in the rear of 2112 Franklin avenue Thursday afternoon.

The lad was stirring the liquid with a short stick when he fell head first in the kettle. A sister rescued him, but he had received fatal injuries.

Mrs. Annie Smith, the boy's mother, is a widow and destitute.

GRADE CROSSING CAUSES WRECK

Trolley Car Crashed Into a Train.

THE BRAKE FAILED TO WORK

MOTORMAN JOHN GRIMM SEVERELY INJURED.

Conductor Mognurs and Nine Passengers, Women, Escaped Injury in the Accident at Broadway and Tesson.

Twin railway evils, the deadly grade crossing and the car brake that fails to work at critical moments, caused one man to be severely injured and imperiled the lives of a half score of others at Broadway and Tesson street, at 7:15 o'clock Friday morning.

Street car 1745 of the Broadway division of the Transit Co., running north at the rate of 20 miles an hour down grade with a defective brake, crashed through the crossing gate at that point and dashed into the inbound Iron Mountain "Cannon Ball" train, which was proceeding westward at the rate of 15 miles an hour.

The street car was wrecked and John Grimm, the motorman, tossed to one side, bleeding and unconscious. The eight passengers in the car, all of whom were women, and the conductor, Edward H. Magnus, saw their danger in time to leap from the car and miraculously escaped injury.

The crossing at which the accident happened is at the bottom of a hill that runs from Davis to Tesson street. There is a woden gate on either side of the track. The crossing is at right angles with the street and is not close to any curve.

Motorman Grimm apparently did not see that the gates were down until he left the top of the hill and when he applied his brake it was broken and failed to work.

F. Daugherty of 8716 South Broadway, saw that the motorman was apparently unaware of the approach of the train and ran out to shout a warning. But the car approached at a terrific speed and both the car and the engine of the train reached the crossing at the same time.

The Brake Was Defective.

Motorman Grimm could not get out of the front end of his car because he was enclosed by the gates. He reversed his current when he saw that the brake would not work and sent the wheels spinning backward. But the distance was too short. The heavy motor car smashed through the slender barrier and struck the engine.

The impact of the diversely moving machines caused the entire front of the car to be torn away and threw the remainder sideways against the mail cars following. Grimm was tossed through the air and fell beside the track.

The train was stopped within its length and the crew and passengers hastened to the relief of Grimm, who wa staken to the office of Dr. Starkloff, 7619 South Broadway, where his injuries were dressed.

Grimm's escape from instant death was remarkable. He was probably injured internally and badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

Grimm told the Post-Dispatch how the accident occurred.

"When I reached Davis street and was starting down the hill toward Tesson I saw that the gate across the Iron Mountain track was down. Then I saw the train approaching. I had plenty of time and distance in which to stop the car. I started to wind up the brake chain, but it would not work. It was broken."

The women passengers left the scene of the accident hurriedly, presumably for their homes. The police, who arrived shortly after the occurrence, could learn the names of none of them.

GEORGE J. GOULD IN THE CITY

President of Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain System on Annual Tour of Inspection.

George J. Gould, head of the Gould railway system, passed Friday in St. Louis in consultation with Vice-President and General Manager Russell Harding and the other officials of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain system.

Mr. Gould is on his annual tour of inspection of the western and southwestern Gould lines. He is president of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain, and will, during the next two weeks, inspect improvements in the system effected by General Manager Harding since Mr. Gould's last visit.

Mr. Gould is accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Gould, their two sons, Jay and Kingdon, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Waterbury of New York.

The party arrived in St. Louis Thursday night over the Wabash. Mr. Gould's private car, Atalanta, was attached to the Wabash Continental Limited.

General Manager Harding and General Passenger Agent H. C. Townsend met the party at Union Station Thursday night and escorted it to the Southern Hotel, where seven rooms had been engaged on the parlor floor.

Mr. Gould, accompanied by his two sons and Mr. Atterbury, met General Manager Harding at 9 o'clock Friday morning in the lobby at the Southern and together they left the hotel, walking to the Missouri Pacific offices at Sixth and Locust streets.

HALPIN SUES FOR DAUGHTER

He Applies to Illinois District Court for Writ of Habeas Corpus for Her.

Attorneys Thomas B. Crews and Eugene Hale, for Robert Halpin of 6151 Plymouth avenue, St. Louis, obtained a writ of habeas corpus from District Judge Martin W. Schaefer of Illinois Thursday, for Grace Halpin, who was abducted by her mother Sept. 27, while she was on her way from her home to the Cabanne school.

The case will be heard in Greenville, Ill., Monday, Oct. 14.

Mr. Hale saw Mrs. Halpin in Greenville, where she is staying with her father and mother, Thursday. Grace was with her. Mr. Hale says the child is unhappy in her present surroundings and begged him to take her home to her father.

He says he does not doubt that the child will again be awarded to her father. The court, he thinks, will uphold the action of the St. Louis court which gave Mr. Halpin the custody of the child, pending divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Halpin has twice sued for divorce from her husband, the attorneys say, and her cases have been dismissed both times with no disturbance of the decree giving the child to her father.

Mrs. Halpin is preparing to make a stubborn fight to retain possession of Grace.

CAR WRECKED IN GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT

PERFECT CONTROL BY SANTOS-DUMONT OF HIS AIR SHIP

Brazilian Seems to Have Solved the Problem.

MET WITH SLIGHT ACCIDENT

AGAIN FAILED TO SAIL AROUND EIFFEL TOWER.

In His Preliminary Trial the Balloon Obeyed the Touch of the Aeronaut's Guiding Hand.

THE MAN AND HIS TASK.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Santos-Dumont is a Brazilian, born in 1873, and weighs but 109 pounds. He made his first balloon ascension in 1897, and was one of the first experts to abandon spherical for cylindrical balloons.

The prize of 100,000f. ($20,000), which M. Santos-Dumont is trying to win, is offered by M. Henri Deutsch, a French aeronaut, for a manageable balloon which can fly from Suresnes around the Eiffel Tower and back in half an hour.

In a former trial Santos-Dumont rounded the tower in 9 minutes and 34 seconds, but his balloon collapsed before the journey was completed, the aeronaut narrowly escaping death.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, made another attempt today to win the Deutsch prize; but, owing to an accident to the rudder of his flying machine, he was obliged to return to the starting place after going 50 yards.

In his preliminary trial yesterday the balloon seemed to be under perfect control, and it seemed apparent that the Brazilian had solved the problem of aeronautics.

M. Santos-Dumont, having completed the repairs to his balloon, the Santos-Dumont VI, in spite of unfavorable predictions based on a sudden rise of the barometer, decided yesterday to start against the wind and maneuver around Longchamp race course.

When the signal to start was given the Santos-Dumont VI shot off like an arrow, and, in spite of a contrary wind, reached Longchamp at a speed impossible to estimate in the actual state of aeronautic science, but certainly as fast as a rapid automobile travels. The speed cannot be estimated at less than 60 kilometers, or 37 miles an hour.

For more than an hour the balloon maneuvered in all directions above the race course with perfect docility in the presence of numerous spectators. An enormous crowd had assembled outside the enclosure waiting for the aeronaut to venture out.

The balloon reached the rendezvous in the twinkling of an eye, while the friends of the aeronaut followed it with all speed.

When tea was over M. Santos-Dumont returned in his aerial carriage to Longchamp, and crossing the Seine at a height of about 66 feet, slightly overshot the Parc d'Aerostation. With a sudden turn he came back to his goal, and passing with considerable speed over the telegraph wire which runs along the western side of the park, stopped in a few minutes between the two sheds.

NINE MEN KILLED IN A MINE

Explosion Caused by Broken Lamp Igniting Gas, Setting the Pit on Fire.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 11.—An explosion occurred at the New England mine of the Fairmont Milling Co., near here today.

Three dead men have already been taken out and six more are believed to still be in the mine, which is on fire.

At the time of the explosion 25 men were at work, but all but nine escaped. The explosion was caused by a broken lamp of one of the miners igniting the gas.

ORLEANS WINS FIRST RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIR GROUNDS, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—The crowd looks small this afternoon after yesterday's large assemblage. The weather is threatening, but the track is fast.

Militant was off first. Spinel went to the front around the back stretch. Orleans took command at the head of the stretch and retained it to the end, winning by a length.

COLUMBIA ACCEPTS TERMS.

Signed Scale with Union Teamsters, Leaving but One Company Out.

The Columbia Transfer Co. signed the schedule of Teamsters' Union 179 to pay $55 to its drivers at 10 a. m. Friday. The men returned to their work.

A committee of the union consisting of W. T. St. Cyr, Patrick Dwyer and Edward Joyce called on Manager Allen of the Columbia Tranfer Co. Friday morning at his request. As Mr. Allen had already promised to pay his men $55 a month the only thing discussed was the addition of his signature to those already appended to the union schedule.

It did not take long for him to sign and the men went to the union hall, Broadway and Biddle street, where a meeting of the union was in progress. The Columbia men were instructed to return to work.

This leaves the St. Louis Transfer Co. again the only teaming company at variance with the union drivers.

MARTIN WEDS MRS. WRIGHT.

Physician's Marriage Is Sequel of Long-Contested Divorce Suit.

Announcement was made Friday of the wedding of Dr. T. A. Martin and Mrs. Edward A. Wright, which took place Wednesday at Mrs. Wright's home, 3863 Washington avenue.

Immediately after the ceremony Dr. Martin and his bride departed for the East.

Mrs. Wright secured a divorce from her husband after a long trial. Her husband originally filed the suit for divorce and later sued Dr. Martin for alleged alienation of his wife's affections. This suit was dismissed by Judge Douglas, but Mrs. Wright filed suit later and procured a decree.

Dr. Martin was an intimate friend of Mr. and Mrs. Wright for several years preceding the filing of the divorce suit.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Topic of Discussion in the Episcopal Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—The house of deputies of the triennial Episcopal convention went into committee of the whole this morning to discuss the canon of marriage and divorce.

The house of bishops began balloting for the new missionary bishops, but the result will not be announced until adjournment.

The woman's auxiliary devoted the morning hours to an informal conference on the junior branch conducted by Mrs. Burleson of North Dakota. At noon Rev. Dr. Powers read the prayers and made a brief address. Several short talks by bishops interested in missionary work were made during the afternoon.

SWEENEY FACED RIOT GUN

Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee Antagonized a Fair Grounds Watchman.

John P. Sweeney, chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Delegates, has applied for a warrant for the arrest of Jack Hanson, a watchman at the Fair Grounds, for threatening to blow him to pieces with a riot gun Thursday night.

Sweeney and a party of friends were in the House of Public Comfort at the Fair Grounds Thursday night when Bill Condon and Louis Fingerling dropped in and sat at a table near Sweeney.

Police Sergeant Kennedy saw Condon and Fingerling and told them to leave the grounds.

"I'll go when I'm ready," said Condon, "I'm not interfering with anyone and I propose to stay."

"Well, you won't," said Kennedy. "You'll get out of here and get quick."

"All right, if you say so," said Condon, "but I won't go until I get my money back."

Supt. Mathews of the Fair Grounds was called and returned Condon's and Fingerling's admission fees.

The pair were preparing to take their departure, during which there was much loud talk on all sides about "getting square." It attracted the attention of Watchman Hanson, who came running up with a riot gun in his hands, which he aimed at the crowd.

It was pointing directly at the sturdy figure of Mr. Sweeney when he pulled the trigger. If it had gone off there probably would have been a vacant chair in the House of Delegates.

"Kennedy," shouted Sweeney, pointing to Hanson, "arrest that man!"

"Who are you?" asked Hanson. "You're making too much noise around here and if you don't shut up I'll put you where no one will hear you."

Kennedy protested that he could not arrest Hanson for what he believed to have been his duty. Hanson was defiant. Sweeney was furious. Everyone was excited.

Friday morning Sweeney asked that a warrant be issued for Hanson's arrest, and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fickelssen is thinking the matter over.

Mr. Sweeney went before Chief Kelley and made charges against Sergt. Kennedy of neglect of duty.

OUR SHORES FREE TO CABLES

Any Company Can Land Its Ocean Wires, Says the Attorney-General.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Attorney Knox made a verbal report to the President and cabinet today regarding the result of his investigations into the Pacific cable question. His conclusion was that under the law of 1866 any domestic company could land any cable on the shores of the United States or of its possessions.

The President and cabinet were convinced by the verbal report that no executive action is called for at this time.

The President will go over the subject more in detail with the attorney-general tomorrow and will review the whole question in his message to Congress.

The law of 1866 is the same law under which the Postal Telegraph Co., claimed it had the power to land a cable at Havana, but the claim was disregarded at the time by the secretary of war.

MOLINEUX MUST WAIT.

Decision on Appeal for New Trial Not Handed Down.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The court of appeals did not hand down a decision today in the case of Roland B. Molineux.

SERGEANT KEPT JUDGE COMPANY

House Attachment Served on Justice Wislizenus.

FAILED TO ANSWER SUMMONS

DELEGATE SWEENEY THEN APPEALED TO SPEAKER CRONIN.

Officer Sent to Court With Instructions to Stay With His Honor Until He Appeared Before Investigating Committee.

Judge Adolph Wislizenus of the Dayton Street Police Court and Sergeant-at-Arms Michael Howard of the House of Delegates were close companions Friday morning.

Like Mary and her lamb, wherever the judge went the sergeant-at-arms was sure to go.

The close companionship of the two men commenced before the opening of court Friday morning and continued during the judge's hour of business after court had adjourned, through his lunch and into the afternoon.

Mr. Howard had not conceived a sudden desire to study police court methods as expounded at the Dayton street tribunal, nor was he curious to know the judge's business affairs and table habits.

He was simply acting under orders—the orders of Delegate John P. Sweeney, who has a feud with Judge Wislizenus, and who is trying to carry out a cherished plan of bringing the judge before a special committee of which, he, Sweeney, is chairman.

The first meeting of Mr. Sweeney's committee was held Tuesday afternoon. Judge Wislizenus had been summoned by Sergeant-at-Arms Howard, but did not appear. The committee heard two deputy marshals and adjourned

Served Attachment in Police Court.

It was determined to bring the judge to Friday's adjourned session of the committee at any cost. For this purpose Howard, with his handsome badge conspicuously concealed by his coat, entered the Dayton street tribunal early.

As the marshal was about to call "Oyez" Howard approached the judge and served on him an attachment signed by Speaker Cronin.

"I will be pleased to meet the committee this afternoon," said the judge. "You may expect me."

This seemed satisfactory, but Howard wished to make sure. So he telephoned to Sweeney.

"Not on your life," was the reply of the chairman of the committee. "Don't you let him hand you a package that way. You stay with him till time for the committee to meet, and see that he is there."

Howard went back to the courtroom. When court was over Judge Wislizenus said:

"You don't need to wait any longer for me."

"I have instructions to see that you attend that meeting, judge," replied Howard.

"You'll see whether I attend it or not," was the court's response.

Then he left the courtroom. He had several business errands, and Howard followed him through them all. The judge's irritation wore off, and he became facetious with his faithful companion. The two ate lunch together with a show of friendliness which might have made Howard unpopular with Sweeney had he witnessed the meal.

Two o'clock is the hour set for the meeting of the special committee.

SUGAR PLANT BURNS

MIDNIGHT FIRE DESTROYS CEREAL COMPANY'S PROPERTY.

ST. LOUIS CANDY CO. DAMAGED

Entire Loss Is Estimated at $100,000 and Is Principally Covered by Insurance.

Fire, originating in the plant of the Cereal Sugar Co., 828 to 834 Gratiot street, a few minutes before midnight Thursday, completely destroyed the contents of that establishment and damaged the building and also the plant of the St. Louis Candy Co., at 810-812 South Ninth street.

The total loss is estimated at about one hundred thousand dollars, almost entirely covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is not known.

The Cereal Sugar Co. and the St. Louis Candy Co. occupied stix-story brick structures. The rear ends of the two buildings are connected, forming an L.

In the hollow of the L, at the southeast corner of Ninth and Gratoit streets, is a two-story brick structure in which Herman Borgstedt conducts a saloon. Borgstedt's family and another family have apartments on the upper floor.

They were awakened by Policeman Goode shortly before midnight with the announcement that the sugar establishment was on fire. Borgstedt says he looked out the window and the flames seemed to jump from all the floors of the building at once.

Three alarms were turned in.

The combustible nature of the contents of the sugar plant made the heat intense, and the firemen experienced much difficulty in fighting the flames.

They turned their efforts to saving the candy factory.

The salvage corps spread its tarpaulins over all the stock and almost the only damage to the candy factory was done by water and smoke. The rear end of the building was burned slightly.

The principal damage to the candy factory occurred in the basement, which was filled with water, completely covering the machinery. Workmen are engaged in pumping out the water.

The contents of the sugar establishment were totally destroyed. The roof and a portion of the walls also fell in on the ruins.

Both buildings are owned by S. N. Long, brother of W. R. Long, vice-president of the Cereal Sugar Co. Dwight Treadway is president of the Cereal Sugar Co.

A. T. Kelley is president of the St. Louis Candy Co. and Charles H. Hoke treasurer.

The Cereal Sugar Co. carried $27,500 insurance on its machinery and $17,000 insurance on its stock. W. R. Long said Friday morning that he did not know the amount of the insurance on the building or its value. Other persons say the building is worth about $50,000, and that it was insured for about $40,000.

The St. Louis Candy Co. has $7500 insurance on its machinery and is fully protected by insurance against loss to its stock. The building is also insured.

BISHOP POTTER ON LABOR

Question Will Not Be Settled Until Employer and Employe Become Brothers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Bishop Potter of New York was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Church Association for the advancement of labor, held at the Alhambra Theater last night. Bishop Potter said in part:

"We will never solve the question of labor until the organizing minds, the guiding hands and employing managers are identified with the unions with which the employes are identified. There should be a mutual understanding between employers and their help, and both should be animated by a common tie of brotherhood and fealty."

Bishop Potter spoke of the operations of the board of mediation of conciliation of New York, of which he is president. He said the board came into being without authority, and added that that was the reason probably why he was chosen as its president. The board was in existence some 10 years, and had settled a number of momentous labor disturbances.

"The operations of the board were conducted on the principle that nothing tangible could be accomplished if the question of social contact was ignored."

In conclusion he said:

"The laborer and employer must be brought closer together. You may legislate as you please, impose taxation as you please, or by any other process readjust the conflicting elements of modern society, but if you have not your heart in the work you will fail utterly. The solution of the labor problem consists in the awakening in the hearts of the employer of deep concern for the welfare of those who are in his employ. Their ideas and hopes should not be antagonistic. They should mingle together and observe the laws of social contact. Their aims being identical, their methods should be harmonious if those aims are to be subserved."

THREE MEDALS IN ONE WEEK.

Such Is the Enviable Record of the J. B. Buss Milling Co.—Their "Table Queen Flour" Takes Gold Medal at Buffalo.

The J. B. Buss Flour Mills obtained the first premium at the St. Louis Fair on their well-known brand of "Table Queen Flour" and yesterday they were informed that "Table Queen Flour" had taken the gold medal at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. They were also awarded the silver medal on their Home Friend brand.

This victory was attained over competitors from all parts of the world. Mr. Buss said, in reference to his great victory, that Table Queen Flour was the purest and best flour made, and, now that he is backed up in his claim by flour experts of international reputation, this, he says, should be sufficient proof to all flour consumers in St. Louis that "Table Queen Flour" is undoubtedly the best flour for family use ever manufactured. It is for sale by all grocers.

LAW AS TO BURGLAR'S TOOLS.

Constitutionality of the Statute Attacked in Supreme Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—The constitutionality of the law making it a felony for any person to have burglar's tools in his possession will be tested in the Missouri Supreme Court.

The prosecuting attorney of this county, F. E. Luckett, this morning applied to Judge Gantt of the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Joseph Robarts from the penitentiary on the ground that the law under which Robarts was convicted is unconstitutional and therefore the conviction is illegal and the defendant is unjustly deprived of his liberty.

Robarts was convicted at the November term, 1900, of the Buchanan County Criminal Court of having burglar's tools in his possession and was sent to the penitentiary for five years. The conviction was under section 1582 of the Revised Statutes of 1899, making it a felony for any person to have burglar's tools in his possession.

Mr. Luckett contend that the law to be legal must require the prosecution to show that the person has such tools in his possession with the intent to commit burglary or a felony of any kind.

The case will be heard in a few days, probably before division No. 2 of the Supreme Court, which is the criminal division.

QUICK DEATH FOR CZOLGOSZ.

men of the prisoner and binds him securely to the seat. His ankles are also strapped to the foot rest at the bottom of the chair.

When all is in readiness two small electrodes fitted with moist sponges like those pressing against the forehead are placed against the bare calf of each leg, the trousers being either slit for the purpose or turned up as far as the knee. When these electrodes are fastened into place the body of Czolgosz will form part of a circuit from the wires at his head to those at his legs, and any current entering the upper wires must pass from the electrodes at his forehead through his body to the electrodes attached to his legs and thus back to the dynamo.

Turning on the Deadly Current.

The execution itself, these details being attended to, is exceedingly simple. Upon the wall of the death chamber is a large switch board and a number of gauges which register the number of volts of current passing over the wires. One of the officials selected for the purpose, either the sheriff or some other officer legally charged with the execution, pulls down a handle on a switch, which completes the circuit, and in a fiftieth of a second about 2200 volts of the deadly electricity leaps through the body of the murderer and passes on through the wires. In that fraction of time it is all over. He is dead as certainly as though a guillotine had descended upon his neck. The current is usually allowed to remain at that intensity for about ten seconds, when it is reduced to 1800 volts. After several seconds, in order to make assurance doubly sure, the current is again increased to upward 2000 volts and then cut off. The execution is over in less than a minute, the penalty demanded by the law has been paid.

This method of execution has met with so much favor from criminologists, physicians and humanitarians that it has been adopted by several other states, notably Massachusetts and Ohio. It is an improvement in hanging from several standpoints, being swirt, sure and painless, and the removal of the body within a minute after the current is turned on is a great advance from the old method, where a man was allowed to hang for from 10 to 15 minutes slowly dying, while a jury of doctors counted his failing pulse beats and finally pronounced him dead. There are no pulse beats in the electric-chair execution. The movement of the handle on the switch board is practically simultaneous with the stoppage of the heart, the obliteration of all sense and feeling and immediate death.

Assassin May Be Dragged to the Chair.

Since the imposition of sentence Czolgosz has lost the nerve which carried him through the ordeal of the trial and has collapsed almost completely. The chances are that by the time the day of the execution arrives he will have to be dragged or carried to the chair. His collapse occurred on his arrival at Auburn penitentiary at 3 o'clock on the morning after his sentence was pronounced in Buffalo. Up to that time he had carried himself marvelously well. He stood the trying test in the courtroom and even the imposition of sentence without a visible weakening and marched back to his cell almost as jauntily as though he had been acquitted.

But the people of Auburn had heard that he was to arrive that morning, and a mob of about 300 had assembled at the station. When the train pulled in there was an outcry from the mob for the murderer's blood. As he was hustled from the train to the prison fists struck at him and hands reached over the officers' shoulders to seize him. Immediately he collapsed and became panic-stricken. Falling upon the floor of his cell, he screamed with fear and agony and begged the officers not to give him up to the mob. That seemed to be his greatest fear—that he would be lynched. As the days passed he grew a bit quieter, but it is apparent to his guards that he has lost his nerve, and they fear he will make a pitiable spectacle of himself when the time comes for his last march on earth—that from his cell to the death chamber.

An arrant coward, the chances are that he will be paralyzed with fear when he views the appartus prepared for his death—the grisly chair, the headpiece and the straps. It is, indeed, a spectacle which might make the most blustering braggart quail, and in the case of a pitiful coward like the man who murdered the President the effect will probably be distressing in the extreme to the sheriff and other officials charged with his legal execution. But they have little pity for him.

Czolgosz is now a trembling, whimpering wretch and the chances are that he will be led to his execution shrieking with terror or practically unconscious from fear.

But in that event the redeeming feature is that the spectacle will not last long. At a hanging when a prisoner faints or struggles there is always a painful scene, as it is necessary to have him on his feet in order to place the noose around his neck. With the electrocution chair this trouble is obviated. The most weak-kneed and trembling of condemned men can be placed in the chair and bound in the usual way without the slightest muscular aid on their own part. The current can be flashed through them and the crime has been expiated.

MUST PAY BACK ALIMONY.

James G. Embree Ordered to Settle With His Former Wife.

James G. Embree, secretary of the Embree-McClain Carriage Co., will have to pay Mrs. Fannie B. Embree, his divorced wife, alimony amounting to $1160.

Judge Douglas of the St. Louis Circuit Court made an order to this effect Friday morning, declaring that the order for alimony would stand as a claim against Mr. Embree's stock in the company of which he is secretary.

Embree contested the alimony claim on the ground that his divorced wife still possessed most of the furniture they had owned together and that he, having married again, could not afford to pay her the amount ordered by the courts.

Mrs. Fannie G. Embree secured a divorce April 11, 1899. Mr. Embree was ordered to pay her $40 a month alimony. He made no payments and in August Mrs. Embree had him summoned into court to show cause why he had disobeyed the court's order. Judge Douglas' order Friday was the result of the summons.

ALLEN'S DEPUTIES DISAGREE

Conflicting Affidavits Filed by Auditor's Representatives in Fair Grounds Suit.

Affidavits of Morton Jourdan, R. F. Walker, S. C. Rogers and E. N. Robinson were filed Friday in Judge Fisher's division of the circuit court in the injunction case of Attorney-General Crow against the bookmakers at the Fair Grounds.

Walker's affidavit was filed by Attorney General Crow and the others by Attorney H. S. Priest, representing the Fair Association.

All the affidavits concern the bookmakers' licenses, which are alleged by Crow to be illegal and void because issued by S. C. Rogers, who was without authority, and furthermore acted counter to State Auditor Allen's instruction.

Walker swears that prior to Aug. 6 he received verbal instructions from Allen not to issue licenses to the Delmar track bookmakers for use after Aug. 13 unless otherwise instructed. He says Allen was in doubt as to his authority to issue licenses for use after Aug. 13.

He declares further that Allen told him that Jourdan had received the same instructions. Walker and Jourdan were Allen's deputies in issuing bookmakers' licenses.

Jourdan, in his affidavit, denies that he ever received instructions from Allen not to issue licenses for use at Delmar or the Fair Grounds after Aug. 13. He says he made an arrangement with Allen at the beginning of the latter's term by which S. C. Rogers and E. N. Robinson were to have charge of the issuing of licenses. He says they issued the contested licenses in the usual way and without knowledge of any other desire on the part of Allen.

Jourdan says the first he heard of Allen's doubting his authority to issue licenses for use on the Delmar or Fair Grounds tracks after Aug. 13 was on Aug. 10, after the licenses had been issued, when he met Allen at Springfield. Allen told him that he had conferred with Attorney-General Crow in the matter.

The affidavits of Rogers and Robinson describe the manner in which they were accustomed to issue licenses to bookmakers under Allen's orders and declare that they followed the same method in the case of the Fair Grounds and Delmar track licenses.

WARRANT FOR POLICE OFFICER.

Serg. Henry W. Meyer of the Ninth Police District is charged in a warrant issued Friday morning with assault and battery.

The warrant was issued on the application of A. R. Henning, a saloonkeeper, at 4069 Easton avenue.

Nearly a month ago, Henning was charged with assault to kill and Sergt. Meyer was the prosecuting witness.

Both cases are the results of an incident that occurred in Henning's saloon early on the morning of Sept. 16.

According to Henning, the sergeant entered the place at 1:30 o'clock and inquired why he was violating the Seibert closing order. A moment later, he says, the officer struck him repeatedly on the head with his club.

In self-defense, Henning says, he drew his revolver and fired it, the bullet entering his own hand while he was trying to ward off further blows from the officer.

He was arrested and Meyer obtained a warrant.

Sergt. Meyer said Friday that he did not strike Henning until the latter had drawn his revolver and tried to shoot him.

ONE OF SCHLEY'S BITTER ENEMIES

SAMPSON'S CHIEF OF STAFF

GOVERNMENT'S SIDE NOT NEAR THE END.

Counsel Rayner Thinks That the Investigation Will Not Be Concluded Before the Middle of November.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—One of the chief witnesses to be heard before the Schley court is Capt. Chadwick, commander of the New York, and Admiral Sampson's chief of staff in the Santiago campaign.

Capt. Chadwick is reckoned one of Schley's most uncompromising foes.

After the witnesses of yesterday had been recalled for the purpose of correcting their testimony, Lieut. J. H. Holden was reintroduced to continue his examination. Other witnesses called for the day besides Capt. Chadwick are Lieutenant-Commander C. C. Marsh and Lieut. E. L. Bennett, both of whom served on the flagship New York; Lieut. Adelbert Althouse of the Massachusetts, Lieut. Francis Boughter of the Marblehead and Lieut. William H. Reynolds, who was signal officer on board the Texas.

Capt. Lemly had supposed that he would be able to conclude the presentation of the government's side of the case by the close of this week, but he now finds that he will still have several witnesses on his list when the court adjourns tomorrow. In all probability he will consume the greater part of the first half of next week. Mr. Rayner estimates that the court will not be able to conclude its work before the middle of November.

Who Ordered the Engines Uncoupled.

A good deal has been made of the fact that the Brooklyn's engines were uncoupled when the battle began, and that she was unable to get under headway quickly. It is said that Schley's counsel will bring out the fact that upon Admiral Sampson's arrival at Santiago he ordered the engines of all the battleships uncoupled. The same authority states it will be shown that the chief engineer of the Oregon refused to uncouple his engines. The Brooklyn uncoupled but two and the Texas two.

The engines were uncoupled and the fires put out under their boilers, it is said, on the score of economizing in the use of coal.

Not Informed That Smoke Was Seen.

Among the witnesses called early in the day for the purpose of correcting early testimony was Admiral H. C. Taylor. While he was on the stand he was questioned as to whether he had received information that the Spaniards were coming out of the harbor at Santiago before they made their appearance on the morning of July 3. The question was asked by Capt. Lemly, and the answer was: "None whatever."

Mr. Rayner: You did not get a message from the Vixen in reference to smoke coming out of the harbor?

"None."

Capt. Parker: Your attention was not called to smoke?

"Not at all, sir."

"Do you remember anybody on your vessel who did observe smoke, and reported it to you?"

"I do not remember."

Capt. Lemly read a report from Capt. Merrill Miller, formerly of the Raleigh, concerning the accuracy of the staidimeter. The report was dated in 1895, and stated that the staidimeter had been found to give accurate results in measurements of less than 800 yards, but not so when the distance was greater. In one case the writer noticed an error of 200 yards in a 1600-yards measurement.

Lieut. Adelbert Althouse, formerly watch and division officer of the battleship Massachusetts, was then called. He detailed the movements of that vessel in connection with the flying squadron. He said that at Cienfuegos the vessels lay six to ten miles out at night, going nearer in the daytime.

Lieut. Althouse said that on the day of the bombardment of the Cristobal Colon he had been in charge of the eight-inch turret of the Massachusetts. He said the ship had not been to exceed three minutes in passing the entrance to the harbor on the first passage and that only two shots were then fired. The instructions were to make the range 7000 yards, but the shots fell short and the range was increased on the return trip to 8500 and then to 10,000 yards. Asked what was developed as to the strength of the land batteries by this reconnoissance he said that to his mind it was shown that they were very weak. In reply to a question as to whether he had made any notes concerning the engagement he replied: "No; we went in under instructions to sink the Colon." His orders had been to direct his fire at that vessel.

Schley's Report to Secretary Long.

When Lieut. Althouse was excused, Capt. Lemly introduced as evidence the reports made by Commodore Schley to the secretary of the navy of the engagement of May 31. In one of these as dated June 3, Commodore Schley said:

"Reconnoissance was intended principally to injure and destroy Colon. The fire was returned without delay by the heavy batteries to the east and to the west entrance, large caliber, long range; reconnoissance developed satisfactorily the presence of the Spanish squadron lying behind island near inner fort as they fired over hill at random. Quite satisfied the Spanish fleet is there."

Dewey's Nephew Tells His Story.

Lieut. P. G. Dewey, nephew of Admiral Dewey, who was a watch officer on the Massachusetts, was the next witness. He placed the distance of the blockading line under Commodore Schley from the mouth of the harbor at from 5 to 8 miles, the distance being about the same day and night. There was, he said, no particular formation of the vessels.

The examination on this point was as follows:

Capt. Lemly: "When you were at the western end of the blockade with the leading vessel making the turn, what orders were there for attacking if you saw the enemy coming out of the entrance?"

"I don't believe we could have seen the enemy coming out. There were no orders I have any knowledge of."

"Why do you think you would not have seen the enemy coming out if such had been case?"

"Owing to darkness and the distance from the harbor. For instance, when we were at the western end of the line the ships could have come out and stood to the eastward without our being any the wiser unless they showed lights."

"How about the reverse of that proposition?"

"I think it would have been the same in either case."

Capt. Lemly then asked: "Did you have any conversation with the commanding officer of the flying squadron or any one in his presence in relation to the fire on the Colon or otherwise?"

Lieut. Dewey replied: "I was told shortly before we started in to the entrance that the commodore wished to see the turret officers in the pilot house. I went to the pilot house and the commodore said that he intended to go in a few moments and have a 'try' at the Colon, and that he hoped we would sink her. I asked what speed we would make, and was told about 10 knots. I remarked at the time that I thought that was giving us very little chance at the Colon, as she would be in sight between the head lines only a couple of minutes and that the smoke from the guns would probably make our fire very slow. To the best of my recollection the commodore stated that we would have to do the best we could; that the speed would be 10 knots."

Witness said, in reply to questions, that the Spanish shore batteries had not given the American ships much trouble on that occasion. "None from the Colon came near," he said, "but two or three shots from the batteries fell about the Massachusetts at the time, one passing over it."

"What conclusion did you arrive at as to the caliber of the shore guns?"

"I did not think they were of very large caliber, not over six-inch."

One of the Men on a Picket Boat.

Lieut. Francis Boughter, who was a watch and division officer on board the Marblehead during Commodore Schley's blockade of Santiago, was then called. He said that during that time the Marblehead and the Vixen were on picket duty between the shore line and the line of the blockade, the Marblehead being stationed three miles from the shore and to the westward, six miles from the Morro. He would not attempt to say how far outside the squadron was, but he could not see the ships after nightfall.

The court asked: "Was the Marblehead in such a position at night while on picket duty off Santiago that the enemy's vessels would have been seen had they attempted to leave the harbor?"

The witness replied: "That would depend on a great many circumstances—the state of the weather, the course they took and their success in keeping their ships dark and quiet."

DR. LOVE ON GRANDMOTHERS

He Favors Their Abolishment and Advocates the Theory of Fewer and Better Children.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Dr. I. N. Love, formerly of St. Louis, now a professor at the Post Graduate Hospital, lectured yesterday before the Society for the Study of Life. His talk was radical and caused a sensation among the ladies of the society.

He criticised men and women of the leisure class and laid the largest measure of responsibility for the vices of the community at their door. Over-indulgence from childhood up he held as the root of all evil, and contended that the lesson of self-restraint in the hame would do more than all reforms.

"I look upon society as a whole," he began, "as a whited sepulcher. First of all, take intemperance. In the business world they have largely solved this problem. Men are drinking less. The same thing applies to cigarette smoking. It is the so-called best people who are drinking, and among the women it obtains more and more.

"I believe," he said, "in having fewer children and better ones."

This was hailed with great applause.

"I do not believe in the great droves of children our great-grandmothers had. The education of a child should commense from the day it is born. More babies are killed from overattention and excessive coddling than any other way. God help the baby that has a grandmother!"

UNPOPULAR MEN.

Whom do you consider the most unpopular man in Missouri?

Having in your own mind answered this question, why do you consider the man of whom you are thinking so unpopular?

If you were asked: "What man in all Missouri would you least care to meet—what man, if you please, would you most shun—what would your answer be?

Now, this may seem a difficult question to answer, for there are in Missouri—yes, right here in St. Louis—some very unpopular men.

But the Sunday Post-Dispatch will name him, and name him so distinctly that you will agree with it without question.

Between now and Sunday just write down a few names and then when you get the Sunday Post-Dispatch compare them and see how near you came to it.

Missouri takes first rank in many things.

Missouri mules have long been acknowledged as occupying the front rank.

For several years the Missouri hen has held the record for egg laying.

Missouri has the most productive lead and zinc mines in the world.

Missouri raises the finest big red apples in the world.

In all these things Missouri has long been reckoned as first. But now there is another product in which Missouri has taken first place. It is, if anything, more important than any of the others. The record in this product has long been held by another state, but now Missouri surpasses it.

You may not be able to guess what it is.

In the Sunday Post-Dispatch—a newspaper which gives Missouri first rank in the journalistic world—you will learn what this other thing is.

The main picture of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition has been determined upon. It will hereafter form the foreground of all designs of the World's Fair site.

It is a matter that has been considered and passed upon by the architects. It will be presented in colors by the Sunday Post-Dispatch. It will prove of intense interest. As the electric tower and the viaduct leading to it were the main picture of the Pan-American Exposition, so will the one to be published in the Sunday Post-Dispatch be the main one of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

There are some enthusiastic fishermen in St. Louis. They can tell so remarkable fish stories.

Some of them are true.

If you were to ask them where the best fishing ground is located they would probably differ in their answers.

But the Sunday Post-Dispatch has discovered one fishing ground which is just as good as there is to be found anywhere. It is also well known to St. Louis fishermen, many of whom have there caught such big fish that they almost fear to tell how large they really were.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch has gathered a few of these records and will devote a page to comparing the fish and stories told by the fishermen.

So far as known, the only person who has ever gone on record as learning the language of the birds was one Hiawatha. Of him the poet tells:

Of all birds he learned their language,
Learned their names and all their secrets,
How they built their nests in summer
* * * * * * *
Called them Hiawatha's chickens.

But now Hiawatha has been outdone. A girl has learned the language of birds and talks to them. She can soothe them to sleep or she can arouse them to battle.

It is a wonderful story—how she learned their language and trained her vocal chords to a point where she is able to imitate their every note.

The story, wonderful though it be, will be told in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

There will also be wonderful stories of two wonderful men of the Orient—men who have done wonderful things. In fact, the Sunday Post-Dispatch will be made up of wonderful stories gleaned from all over the world and written in the most readable manner.

DYNAMITE UNDER A CHURCH

Man for Whose Destruction It Was Intended Found It While Cleaning Furnace Pipe.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Oct. 11.—While cleaning the furnace pipes at the Hickory Church, nine miles from this city, in Sangamon Valley, two one pound sticks of dynamite were found resting beneath one of the pipes. The discovery was made by David Carr, a wealthy member of the church, and the janitor. After summoning witnesses they removed the explosive to a place of safety. It lay directly beneath the pew usually occupied by Mr. Carr and his family, and was connected with the outside by a 25-foot fuse.

During the summer an attempt was made to burn Carr's big barn and threshing outfit which stood near, oil being scattered freely over them. The blaze was put out without much damage, and the next morning bloodhounds tracked a young farm hand residing near to his home. He was arrested and bound over to appear at the term of circuit court which is now in session. His trial will begin next week and it is intimated that the attempt to blow up Carr was the result of a plot to get him out of the way, so that he could not appear against the young fellow. The amount of dynamite was sufficient to have blown the entire church to pieces and the citizens of the valley will probably deal roughly with the person who put it there when proof positive is produced.

Carr is a peaceable, respected man and the cause of the attack on his property is a mystery.

MYSTERIOUS SUBMARINE BOAT.

It Is Cigar-Shaped, Burns Kerosene and Is Thought to Be an Experiment.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 11.—A mysterious submarine boat which has been under construction for the last three years at Ware Island, near the mouth of Stamford harbor, has departed for the New Jersey coast where she may have deep water for her trial. J. L. Carter, who had superintended the building of the boat, has maintained much secrecy about her design, but she is said to be 50 feet long and have a cigar shaped hull of pine sheathed with galvanized iron. The motive power is supplied by two powerful engines driving two dynamos, kerosene oil being used as fuel and serving also as ballast. The boat is supposed to have been built as an experiment for a party of capitalists.

THE NO-PASS RULE.

If the reported determination of the Trunk Line Association to abolish passes on Jan. 1 is carried into effect without discrimination, that is, if all passes are abolished, the action of the great railroads will be generally approved.

But will all passes be abolished? Will the power to issue passes be taken away from the railroad lobbyists? Will the man who can serve the railroads in politics and man who is not so useful? Will the "pull" be powerless to command a pass?

In the past the restrictions on the issue of passes have been enforced with an eye single to the promotion of railroad interests. The impartial enforcement of the non-pass rule would be a great reform—good for the railroad shareholders and for the people generally, who bear the burden of the free pass and suffer its ill effects upon politics and legislation. A discriminating enforcement of the rule would be worse than none.

There has been a large increase of real estate sales in St. Louis in October. It is quite possible that another year will show wonderful progress in the real estate market.

DESTRUCTION OF SHADE TREES.

Commenting on a recent editorial in the Post-Dispatch, on the desirability of planting and caring for shade trees as a means of beautifying the city, a correspondent makes some timely remarks, in the letter published Wednesday. He asks what is the use of planting and caring for shade trees, if the city permits corporations to kill or disfigure them by the erection of poles and wires. He points out that these corporations too often put up their poles with an utter disregard for the rights of the citizen in the shade trees for which he has spent money and labor. Holes are dug close to the trees, roots are cut away and limbs sacrificed. Afterwards, the electric current slowly but surely completes the work of destruction.

The point is well taken. We have set about the work of beautifying the city, in preparation for the World's Fair. No cheaper or better way can be found than the planting of plenty of shade trees. It is admitted that they beautify a city as nothing else can and public-spirited citizens are anxious to plant shade trees, if they can be assured that their efforts will not be nullified by others.

No more permits for the erection of poles on residence streets should be granted. The conduit district should be enlarged. And beyond this, all poles needed should be set up in the alleys. If we are to have a beautiful city, embowered in shade trees, the city must co-operate with the citizen.

The new Ameer of Afghanistan is called the God-appointed friend of England. Perhaps the English are getting more divine assistance in Afghanistan than in South Africa.

GROWTH OF STREET RAILWAYS.

The American Street Railway Association held its twentieth annual convention in New York this week. Twenty years ago this industry was in its infancy. For ten years it continued to be a puny infant. Dependent on the horse, mule and cable, it contained no promise of the wonderful growth of the past ten years.

In 1880, the United States only had 2050 miles of street railway. By 1890 this had grown to 8123, but the trolley system was still in its experimental stage. Being found economic and practicable, a tremendous impulse was given to street railway building. By 1897 the mileage had increased to 15,719, and in 1899 it had jumped to 17,728, a gain in two years almost equal to the total mileage of 1880.

And now, with the certainty that horse power will be totally displaced and cables used only on very steep declivities, the electric car is becoming the people's coach, not only in cities, but all over the country. It is not too much to predict that during the next two decades nearly all the principal cities of the country will be connected by networks of electric railways. City and country will be married, and the slum problem will be a curious historic fact for our children to wonder at.

These new conditions have brought to the front an important problem—how to run street cars along the public highways in great centers of population in such a way as to provide for the public safety without the sacrifice of reasonable speed. This problem must be settled by the street railway men in the near future.

The new President is calling for honest men. These are not so scarce as the machinations of politicians have led the country to believe.

BIRDS HAVE COME BACK.

The sudden reappearance of birds on women's hats has stirred the Illinois Audubon Society to renewed activity.

The fashion is a rage. Milliners say that the call for birds was never so fervent. Not only wings and breasts are demanded, but whole birds—bills, wings, feet and all. In one Chicago shop a family of birds is nested on a hat and other notions equally grotesque are reported.

The worst of it is many women who have hitherto worked against the barbaric practice are caught in the toils and meekly submit. Club women in Chicago have generally aided the Audubon Society, but they tire of their sentiment and have "gone back to their feathers."

"Just one woman has refused to wear feathers," a fashionable milliner is reported to have said. "This is the first year that we have not had to favor the feeling against the use of birds. With the returning fashion has come the desire of women to wear their feathers and they have forgotten their hobby accordingly. Of course, if women did not want feathers, we would not show them."

In these democratic days people are fond of thinking and saying that they do as they please. The individual is free to regulate conduct according to one's own idea, always keeping within the bounds of decency and morality. But how many practice this gospel of individual liberty? The woman studies, not to please herself, not to give form to her own ideas, but to please her neighbor or some unknown dictator of fashion. We are all ironed down to a common level of fashion, and the fashion changes with the whim of the milliners' mob.

The birds will have to submit and feed the barbaric human taste. By and by when there are no more birds to kill humanity may become human.

Through his election to the presidency of the Board of Education Mr. John Schroers is confronted by a great opportunity. If Mr. Schroers will successfully devote his energy and capacity to the task of supplying St. Louis with ample grammar and high school accommodations for the growing school population of St. Louis, he will do a memorable work for the city. The head of the public schools who can leave his office with the knowledge that not one child is deprived of the full advantages of the public school system by lack of accommodations will earn the gratitude of the St. Louis people. He will do the best possible public service. Mr. Schroer's experience in the board places him in position to understand the problem. Well-directed energy will do the rest.

MOST UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRATION.

There were 388,981 steerage aliens, who arrived during the year ending June 30, 1901. Of these 111,325 came from southern Italy, 37,636 from Poland and 20,360 from northern Italy. In all there were 250,000 persons of undesirable character, leaving only some 140,000 to be credited to the more wholesome human breeding places of Europe.

The Greek immigration shows an increase of 50 per cent, Armenian and Syrian about the same, Croatian and Dalmatian 30 per cent. Southern Italy alone sends 30,000 more than in 1900.

The worst of it is illiteracy is increasing along with the decline of race character. "The conclusion," says the report, "is unavoidable that our immigration is constantly increasing in illiteracy. Not only are we drawing more and more from the countries where illiteracy is higher, but also the immigrants themselves are showing higher percentages of illiteracy. Nearly one-half of our steerage immigration now presents an illiteracy from 40 to over 50 per cent."

That is to say, we are getting not only the bad, but the worst of the bad.

It suggests an interesting question: Why have we ceased to attract the best while drawing the worst?

A traveler in describing the autumn excursion trains to St. Louis says he was literally pounded to death before reaching here. He was never before so mashed and pummeled and sat upon and raised up. If this happens in the autumn of 1901, how many trains will it take to get the World's Fair millions into St. Louis in 1903? It will certainly be "up to" the railroads then.

The finding of a number of unpaid bills among the ruins of Babylon is an evidence that man has not evoluted much from the procrastination that characterized the ancients in their money matters. Doubtless the man who borrows small sums and never returns them was as frequent among the Babylonians as he is today.

Answers to messages sent to newspaper editors of all shades of political opinion show a general approval of President Roosevelt's announced policy of government supervision of trusts. It looks as if the new President is to be well supported in his reformatory measures.

Gov. Rogers is determined that the great new State of Washington shall be well represented at the World's Fair of 1903. The absence of a state bearing the name of the Father of His Country would be absurd in an Exposition so much concerning the whole republic.

There are two great political parties of the United States, one or the other of which is always in power, yet neither has tried to pulverize the lobby. We can never have clean legislation while the lobby is in charge of our legislative bodies.

Mr. Adolphus Busch has been doing excellent work in Germany in making known the great Exposition of 1903. The United States will know all about it. Our greatest advertising work for the present is in Europe.

The presidential tragedy will be a shadow on President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving proclamation, but it will not conceal the many blessings for which the people of the United States will express their gratitude.

Director-General Buchanan says that the Pan-American Exposition has made Buffalo business brisk and benefited the city far beyond the cost. No business depression is expected at the close.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

Permanent Missouri Buildings.

From the Jefferson City (Mo.) Press.

The State of Missouri set aside the sum of $1,000,000 for the erection of suitable buildings at St. Louis to be known as the Missouri buildings. There is at present a well-defined idea all over the state that these buildings should be permanent and not be constructed with any intention of tearing down after the Exposition has closed. If these buildings are erected with the idea of being taken apart after the Fair has closed it is safe to say that the buildings in the first place will not be too strongly modeled. It would cost the state an enormous amount to take down and transport the material of the buildings and erect them again at any other locality in the state. If the buildings are going to be a credit to the greatness of the state, the taxpayers, who are furnishing the money for their erection, desire them to fulfill their mission. By all means make the Missouri group one of great architectural beauty, and likewise make it permanent and let it remain in the great Missouri metropolis, where the centennial of the Louisiana Purchase is to be commemorated.

Will He Pay?

I am conscious of no stoical aversion to wealth.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

Of late, when Willie Vanderbilt
Declared that riches made him wilt,
Deprived him of ambition
And otherwise retarded him,
And left him in a sorry, grim,
Unsatisfied condition,
We all opined that Willie's grief
Demanded sure and quick relief.

With one acclaim we volunteered
To bear the wealth that Willie feared,
Nor cast on him aspersion,
Regarding it a means to health;
Besides, we harbored, as to wealth,
"No stocial aversion;"
But not a dollor have we seen
Of Willie's pile of gold and green.

By fate pursued, by fortune trapped,
We're willing to be handicapped
With wealth, if wealth betide us,
And we would take it, offered flat,
Nor for a moment grumble at
The cruel fate of Midas,
Who had so much of gold he sought
To have his wealth reduced to naught.

So let us now, one brotherhood,
Demand that Willie K. "make good"
This little bluff of his'n
About his monetary grief,
And give a weary soul relief,
Now languishing in prison.
We owe it to ourselves, we say,
And Willie owes us. Willie pay?

A Fable of Progress.

Once there was a man in a great city who was opposed to all improvements.

"They cost too much," he said.

He salted down his money and got no enjoyment out of it, hoarding it to be disposed of later by his ne'er-do-well brother and a bunch of giddy nieces.

His property was assessed lightly, taxed lightly and rented for 50 per cent more than it was worth. Old Skin Flint was well satisfied to let it go at that.

The plumbing was bad, there were no sidewalks, and his houses showed the result of wear and tear, but the owner would not repair them. It cost too much.

Finally the people, who were about to hold a great exposition, determined to rehabilitate their city. Millions of dollars were to be spent. To do this required a change in the charter.

"The old charter is as good now as it was 25 years ago," said old Skin Flint. "It's good enough for me."

No argument could move him.

"A man is a fool," said he, "to spend money for improvements he can get along without. You fellows go ahead, if you want to. I'll keep on in my own way."

So the charter was changed, the great exposition was held, and property values advanced 100 per cent. Old Skin Flint's houses became so unsightly that the city condemned them, and compelled him to tear them down.

SWEDEN TO GIVE UP LATIN.

Dead Language in State Schools Makes Way for English.

After prolonged controversy, says a Stockholm special in the New York Herald, the authorities have decided to eliminate Latin from the lower grades in the higher state schools of Sweden, while totally transferring Greek to the universities.

The time thus gained will be devoted partly to a closer study of the English language and partly to modern history and economics.

THE AMERICAN HUSBAND.

America is the land of homes, and taking into account the number of inhabitants, no larger proportion of its inhabitants live in boarding houses and hotels than do those of England. It is also to a much greater extent than any other country of the world the land of equality and community of interests between men and women. If one takes the typical American husband and wife one will certainly find that their common interests are many; that the wife is a companion to her husband, and that, knowing she is his intellectual equal, the American man discusses freely and confidentially with his wife his professional and business relations to a far greater extent than does the typical Englishman. Club life among married men is not nearly so common in American as in England. Throughout the length and breadth of the United States thousands upon thousands of husbands and wives spend their evenings reading together the books and magazines, or the wife doing a bit of fancy work or mending while the husband reads aloud from the newspapers. Many American husbands and wives have taken up what is known as the "Chautauque course;" many a western farmer and his wife thus spend their winter evenings.

Then let us take the young, unmarried men and women of my country. Surely they do not lead very separate lives, and their interests in common are many. Who takes the American girl to the museums of art, to the theater, to the concert? Who sends her presents of bonbons, books and flowers, all for the pleasure of her society and companionship? It is the American young man! He can do it too without feeling that his attentions will be misunderstood, for America is the land of good comradeship between men and women. There friendship, deep and lasting, without any thought of love-making or marriage, may exist between the unmarried of the two sexes, and it seems to be the only country in the world where it can exist. Certainly such a state of things between the young men and the young women of a country points not to a separation but to a community of interests.—Elizabeth L. Banks in London Mail.

English walnuts grow very easily in this country. We saw a young tree that had grown from the nut, and it was six or eight feet tall and had been growing only two or three years. We saw a very large tree once in South Carolina, says the Elberton Tribune, that was as large as the common walnut tree that is indigenous to our soil, and that bore bushels of these delicious nuts. So we think the English walnut can be grown as successfully and with as little trouble as the common walnut. Try it. When you get the fresh nuts this fall plant some of them.

Toothsome Dishes for Fall Dinners.

SPANISH TORTILLAS.—One quart of flour, one cup of milk, two tablespoonfuls of drippings, salt. Make a dough and knead thoroughly. Take pieces of the dough and pat between the hands until it makes a large, round, thin cake. Bake on a griddle until brown.

SPANISH FRIED RICE.—Rice, salt, dripping, black pepper, onions, hot water, garlic, tomatoes. Wash the rice and brown it in hot dripping. Then add onions, tomatoes and garlic. Cover the whole with hot water. Season with salt and pepper. Let rice cook thoroughly, adding water as needed, but do not stir.

SPANISH STEAK.—This dish is much like chilliconcarne. Provide for it two pounds of round steak, six red chilis, two cloves, one tablespoonful of flour, a little garlic, thyme, dripping. Seed the chilis and cover with boiling water. Soak until tender and then scrape the pulp into water. Cut steak in small pieces and fry brown in dripping or butter; add flour and brown it. Cover with the chili water, add garlic and thyme. Simmer until the meat is tender and the gravy of the right consistency.

HOW TO COOK MUSHROOMS.—Many foods are simply mediums for added flavors. Not so the mushroom. It has a decided, exquisite flavor of its own. It should not be made in cooking to taste like something else. Put the mushrooms in a stew pan with a little water; cover them, and stew slowly for 20 minutes, adding butter, salt and pepper to taste. Cream or milk may be added. Another very good way is to butter well a medium-hot pan; cut the mushrooms into equal-sized pieces, put them in it, cover and fry. Stir them from time to time, and when quite done season with salt and pepper. A good gravy is made for them by using water, milk or cream. Now, if you must have a meat of some sort, put the meat on one dish and the mushrooms on another. By doing this you spoil the taste of neither.—From "Raising Mushrooms at Home," by Charles McIlvaine in the October Woman's Home Companion.

STUFFED PEPPER MANGOES.—Cut the tops from fifty green peppers and with a small, sharp knife remove the seeds. Set the peppers and tops in brine and stand for twenty-four hours. Drain and stuff the peppers with shredded or chopped cabbage to which have been added ground cloves, allspice, mustard seed, celery seed and salt to taste. Tie on the tops with soft cord, stand the peppers in a wide-mouthed jar and fill the jar with spiced vinegar. Do not use for some weeks. Meanwhile pour off the vinegar twice a week, scald and pour hot over the mangoes.

SWEETBREAD CUTLETS. — Parboil, blanch and mince enough sweetbreads to make two cupfuls. Put into a saucepan with a little white stock and bring to a boil. Thicken with a white roux, and when smooth stir in gradually two beaten egg yolks, then turn the mixture upon a dish to cool and stiffen. Form with floured hands into cutlets, and proceed as in the recipe for mushroom cutlets.

CHICKEN FRITTERS.—Cook one heaped tablespoonful of flour in one tablespoonful of hot butter and one cup of hot chicken stock added gradually. Season with celery salt and pepper and pour half of this sauce into a small, shallow, buttered pan. Chop one cupful of cold chicken quite fine, season and spread it evenly over the top of the sauce, after it has thickened. Cover with the remainder of the sauce, place on ice, when very cold and hard cut into small pieces. Dip them quickly into batter and fry in deep, hot fat.

RICE TUTTI FRUTTI.—To one-half cupful of boiled rice add one cupful of cream whipped to a stiff froth. Have one-half box of gelatin soaking in one-half cupful of cold water. Chop six figs, six red candied cherries, a little preserved ginger and one tablespoonful of citron. Heat the gelatine and stir it until dissolved. Add to the rice and cream the fruit, one-half a cupful of sugar and the strained gelatine. Mix thoroughly. Pack in a mold. When cold turn out of the mold, garnish with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with sherry, or add the sherry to the rice and fruit.

GRILLED BONE, ST. HUBERT STYLE. —First make a sauce as follows: Place one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add one tablespoonful of minced onions, half a teaspoonful of minced green peppers, six minced French mushrooms. Saute for a few minutes. Add one tablespoonful flour, stir until cooked; add half pint chicken or soup stock, one teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoonful vinegar, a scant teaspoonful dry mustard. Mix the mustard and vinegar together before adding. Finish with a little minced parsley and one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, or less if stock is salted. Cook the sauce slow for 10 minutes, then cut a slice of cold rare roast beef with one of the ribs attached. Place on a broiler long enough to heat thoroughly, then put it on a hot platter, pour the sauce over it and serve. As an appetizer this has no equal.—By C. F. Sterns, Chef, St. Hubert Hotel, Chicago.

Maltreating Schoolboys.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In public interviews Manager Dupont and other officials of the St. Louis Transit Co. said they would not countenance brutality on the part of conductors and motormen or the maltreatment of passengers.

These gentlemen should investigate the maltreatment of Manual Training School boys on their way to the playgrounds in Athletic Park Wednesday, by their employes, a report of which appeared in the Post-Dispatch.

I happen to know something about the circumstances. The conductor pulled the ears and hair of one of the boys and kicked him from the car. The inspector kicked and threw one of the boys off the car and the motorman held and beat the smallest of the boys. In starting to help the conductor the motorman yelled, "Let's clean out the bunch."

The offense of the boys was lack of respect the conductor thought due to himself, and a little good-humored badinage. What do the gentlemen who manage the St. Louis Transit Co. think of men, intrusted with the running of street cars filled with passengers, who would beat and kick schoolboys and throw them off the car for a little boyish jollity?

Would they like to trust their children to men of this stripe? CITIZEN.

Scotch-Irish.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

James Main Dixon says that the Scotch Lowlander is not a Celt. Can he prove that Southwest Scotland, Galloway and the Grampians are not Celtic? If the Scotch Lowlands drew any Saxon blood from England it was from the district south of them. But Devonshire, Cornwall, Lancashire and Cumberland are Celtic. That is a part of what Lord Salisbury calls "The Celtic fringe of Britain," and surely Salisbury knew his country. Scotch Celt mixed with English Celt across the border.

Galloway is nearest Ireland. The narrow St. George's channel divides them and Galloway, the country of the Douglas, is distinctively Celtic. A near relative, a Scotchman born and bred, says that you have to speak the Gaelic to the "coos" in Galloway. From Galloway came the Scotch Ulsterman. The names of the plantations are Galloway names, and these are facts, not theories.

Between thirty-five and forty years ago Robert Bonner of the New York Ledger, Horace Greeley of the Tribune and A. T. Stewart formed a society. For political, social and business reasons they did not want to align themselves with Irish Organizations, so they called themselves the Scotch-Irish, a cowardly evasion which their American compatriots were not slow to adopt. James Gordon Bennett scoffed and sneered at them as others have scoffed and sneered ever since. Every book mentioned by Prof. Dixon, Parkman's, Temple's and Roosevelt's, has been written since the birth of that society. Roosevelt is known as a magazine writer who treats historical subjects in an interesting and graphic way, but he is not a historian. ULSTERMAN.

Smoking on Street Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I find an edict this morning on the Olive street cars that no seats are allowed for smokers. Smoking is probably a vulgar habit, but it is a very general one among men and I think it as worthy of consideration as the ideas and wishes of the W. C. T. U. and the "no smoke" classes combined. Both the "smoke" and "anti-smoke" classes could be readily accommodated by running a reasonable number of "smoking cars."

Those cars should be plainly indicated by signs and if the addition of "No Ladies" was added to the sign it would do much to spare the feelings of those dear creatures who complain of being obliged to sit by a "horrid man" or stand.

I have patronized that line for over thirty years and would like sometimes to be able to sit and enjoy a quiet smoke on my way to and from my work. Please suggest this to the transit company and greatly oblige, A SMOKER.

Examination of Immigrants.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Relative to immigration to this country from foreign states, it seems to me the following would be a good plan:

1. That all persons, 18 years or over, wishing to emigrate to the United States, must make application to the United States minister in their respective countries, with photograph of applicant, and fair evidence of good moral character.

2. That they be examined as to their ability to speak, read and write the English language, and that they be tested as to their knowledge of the constitution of the United States.

Would like to hear from others as to this. A. O. M.

Texas Is Oil Right.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been to Texas and am completely overcome with the business possibilities of that state. Rice, cotton, lumber and oil seem to be rapidly producing millionaires.

I went to Beaumont with Attorney Alexander Young and together we visited Spindle Top, where all the oil in Texas is found. The derricks seem all huddled together on this famous spot and to see the boiler furnaces being fed with crude oil convinced us at once of its fuel advantage. Texas is not right and no mistake. The first thing that occurs to one's mind, however, is, will it last? But when you see the pipe lines being completed to the seaboard and everywhere behold storage tanks in different stages of construction, all doubt of its permanency is removed. It does look as if oil has come to stay, which reminds me that if our World's Fair is to demonstrate the march of progress in the West, why not have all its machinery run by oil? It would prove a great novelty and do away with smoke, cinders and ashes, besides being a great saving to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. A HANNERTY IDEA.

FAMOUS SHORT STORIES

THE BUSTED BLUE DOLL

By Zack.

DEEP down in the Australian Alps is the little town of Omeo. The hills around are scored with worked-out and long-forsaken gold mines; here and there the thud of the pick may still be heard issuing from some deep shaft; but most of the claims are deserted, and the men who worked them swept away towards other adventures, or lying quiet and ambitionless under the Gippsland sod.

Far up the mountain, where the sarsaparilla hangs from the gum-trees its ragged flame of blue, is a deserted mine; great heaps of yellow mullock line the shaft's mouth; above, the windlass rots out its broken existence; and farther in the shadow an uneven mound, a broad crack, a post with a piece of tin and the name "Battista" scrawled upon it, mark a grave.

One of the early rushes had brought Battista to Australia, and drifted him to the little mining camp among the Gippsland hills. The men laughed at his high-pointed hat with its flapping curves, and at his blue-and-gold image of the Madonna; but Battista had wandered under the gum-trees, and paid scant heed to them. Sometimes he had stooped to pick up a piece of quartz and rub it absently on his sleeve; and when the evening came he had taken up his shepherd's pipe and sounded once more the airs he had played in the far-off Abruzzi.

At dawn, as Battista stood and watched the sun flame up in the east, and fall in a broad yellow stream upon the Madonna's image, the thought came to him that where the ray fell he would dig for gold, and the idea comforted him; it seemed as if the Blessed Virgin herself had designated to point out the way of escape from this strange and homeless land. Many days he worked; the yellow mullock heaps rose higher beside the rapidly deepening shaft, when a long-limbed, brown-faced American "jumped" his claim. Battista had neglected to procure a license.

At first he could not understand what had happened; afterwards, when he realized, he took his broad, keen-edged knife, and laying it at the Madonna's feet, begged her to bless it, and having crossed himself, turned away and went down the mountain-side till he reached the camp. He touched the American on the arm and pointed to his knife; the man fresh from the States laughed lightly; then they drew aside and fought together, and Battista's foot slipped so that his enemy escaped him; but that evening the American sold the mine to Termater Bill, the storekeeper, for three long drinks and a new swag, going away to try his luck elsewhere. As for Battista, he returned once more to his claim at the foot of the ragged-breasted gum trees, and here it was that Termater Bill found him.

"I've jest cum," he said, sitting down on a great heap of mullock, "to talk over that blanky claim. I reckon myself there is gold in it."

But Battista answered that, gold or no gold, the mine was his, and he would kill anyone who tried to take it from him.

Termater Bill was silent for a while, and spat meditatively down the narrow shaft. At last he observed in an undertone—

Battista did not understand the allusion to the Madonna, and made no reply.

Again there was a long silence. At last Termater Bill rose and stretched himself. "'Spose," he exclaimed, "I was ter give yer a fifteen years' lease, wi' a half share in the profits, twud be a blanky sight better than a poke in the eye with a burnt stick." But Battista went on digging, and paid no heed to him, till after a while the storekeeper went away.

Time passed by; the great mullock-heaps grew higher, but Battista did not find gold. Sometimes Termater Bill strolled up and asked him if he had "struck that blanky lead yet?" Then Battista shook his head, but added that he knew the gold was there—the blessed Madonna had said so. Termater Bill spat down the long shaft and exclaimed, "Thet ther jumpt-up busted blue doll gits me quite."

But when night fell and grotesque things moved in and out among the shadows, and the spirit of desolation crept through the bush, then had come into Battista's heart a great weariness of waiting, and he had flung himself down before the image of the Madonna and wept.

And the little blue-and-gold figure had stared out into the gathering darkness with its blank meaningless smile as vacant and as indifferent as before.

It happened that in one of these moments Termater Bill had come to the hut, and Battista, realizing that another person was present, sprang to his feet.

"There's gold in that claim," he cried fiercely.

Termater Bill spat on the ground and said, "Thet's so."

"I tell you there is gold in that claim," Battista re-echoed with rising anger.

And Termater Bill spat on the ground once more and repeated, "Thet's so;" then had turned and gone down the moutain towards the camp. "If it warn't for that busted blue doll," he repeated to himself—"the jumpt-up busted thing."

The next day he came again and sat down on an old hide bucket in front of Battista's hut. "I've bin fixin' things up a bit in my mind," he said. "I reckon last night I was a bit ski-wift. Now 'spose," he continued, taking off his hat and placing it before him on the ground, "that thar 'at is the Brown Snake Mine; wall, us knows their main lead runs purty slick to the nor'east; say yer put in a drive by that tarnation bit o' grass bush," and he spat neatly into the center of the spot indicated, "wot's ter prevent yer dropping on gold?"

Battista's lips relaxed into a smile. Termater Bill rubbed the sleeve of his shirt across his rough red face, glancing as he did so at his companion.

"Luck is a thundering queer consarn," he exclaimed, after a pause; "I niver bottomed it myself; if yer don't git it, it gits yer, an' I reckon the darned thing is the smartest wi' the gloves."

He took his pipe out of his mouth and pressed his horny thumb down on the red-hot ashes.

"I wudn't lay too much on that jumpt-up blue doll, if I was yer," he said.

Battista smiled. "You don't understand," he answered.

And Termater Bill spat on the ground. "Eh, thet's so," he said, "thet's so."

There was a pause.

"But," began Termater Bill.

"Well?" said the Italian.

"'Tis the tarnation grin on the thing that gits me," the storekeeper burst out, "jest as if her was kinder larfin' at yer; her ain't no mug, that busted doll, I'll lay to that."

Battista frowned. "You don't understand," he reiterated.

Again Termater Bill spat on the ground. "Eh, thet's so, he said, "thet's so."

A few weeks later a big bush fire swept across the hills, and the storekeeper had enough to do without troubling himself about the mine; but when a sudden change of wind sent the fire raging and tearing through the Fainting Ranges and away in the direction of Mount Hopeless, he retraced his steps over the blackened ground till he reached Battista's hut. It was empty. Close by the hide rope dangled from the windlass; the woods were silent except for the crashing of some half-charred tree as it toppled over and fell with a great splutter of cinders and wide swirling clouds of soft gray ashes; and stretched face downwards, near the shaft's mouth, the Italian lay dead. Termater Bill turned the body over.

"Pegged out," he said softly—"the blanky cuss has pegged out." Then he turned to the door of the hut and stopped short. "No," he exclaimed, "I reckon I won't: I reckon I cudn't stummick that God's cuss o' a grin just yet."

That afternoon they dug Battista's grave beside his claim—a crowd of idle diggers and dogs looked on. One man, an old fossicker, who was recovering from an attack of the jim-jams (delirium tremens), and whose ideas were still rather hazy, expressed a desire to fight the corpse.

"Git up," he said, "an I will wrastle wi' yer; git up, yer blanked-out son o' a working bullock, an' I will fight yer for a note."

But the dead man lay still and paid no heed to him.

Termaster Bill said he reckoned the company wud 'low him to say a few words.

The company 'lowed him.

Some of the men sat down on the mullock heaps and began to fill their pipes; others stood about; and one, a jackeroo, took off his hat and then rather sheepishly put it on again.

Termaster Bill cleared his throat and spat into the open grave. "Life," he said, "was a jumpt-up quare thing: there wa' they who bottomed payable dirt fust go off, and thar wa' they who—didn't." He was silent for a moment, and rubbed his face with his sleeve. "But," he continued, "maybe out thar," and he pointed vaguely towards a patch of sunset sky, "across the Divide, they finds color." He ceased speaking, and the men puffed awai at their pipes in silence: at last some one suggested that it was time for the corpse to "turn in."

They lowered the dead man into the grave—there was no coffin. His arms had stiffened against the walls of the grave and looked as if he were about to turn a wheel into eternity. They shovelled back the earth rather gingerly, avoiding the dead man's face; but, after all, it had to be covered the same as the rest. When they had finished their task they strolled off towards the camp, only Termater Bill remaining behind. He went to Battista's hut and peered through the half-shut door: there in the corner the little blue-and-gold image stared, smiling down inscrutable, indifferent. Long the man gazed back on it; then with sudden determination he entered the hut, taking Battista's coat from a bench, covered the small figure, then lifting it in his arms, carried it out and flung it down the deep shaft.

But under the gum trees Battista lay still, silent, satisfied. The years went on, the bottom of the shaft filled with water, and the mullock slipped back into it with a heavy splash; the windlass rotted and grew green, and some one stole the bucket and hide rope; far, far below in the valley the sweet-scented wattle burst into tufted yellow balls, and the blue mist lay on Omeo.

FOR THE CHILDREN

To Keep Their Digestion Perfect Nothing is so Safe and Pleasant as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Thousands of men and women have found Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the safest and most reliable preparation for any form of indigestion or stomach trouble.

Thousands of people who are not sick, but are well and wish to keep well, take

Stuart's Tablets after every meal to insure perfect digestion and avoid trouble. But it is not generally known that the Tablets are just as good and wholesome for little folks as for their elders.

Little children who are pale, thin and have no appetite, or do not grow or thrive, should use the tablets after eating and will derive great benefit from them.

Mrs. G. H. Crotsley, 538 Washington St., Hoboken, New Jersey, writes: "Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets just fill the bill for children as well as for older folks. I've had the best of luck with them. My three-year-old girl takes them as readily as candy. I have only to say 'tablets' and she drops everything else and runs for them.'

A Buffalo mother, a short time ago, who despaired of the life of her babe, was so delighted with the results from giving the child these tablets that she went before the notary public of Erie Co., N. Y., and made the following affidavit:

Gentlemen.—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets were recommended to me for my two-months-old baby, which was sick and puny and the doctors said was suffering from indigestion. I took the child to the hospital, but there found no relief. A friend mentioned the Stuart Tablets and I procured a box from my druggist and used only the large sweet lozenges in the box and was delighted to find they were just the thing for my baby. I feel justified in saying that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets saved my child's life.

MRS. W. T. DETHLOPE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 12th day of April, 1897.

HENRY KARIS.

Notary Public in and for Erie Co., N. Y.

For babies, no matter how young or delicate, the tablets will accomplish wonders in increasing flesh, appetite and growth. Use only the large sweet tablets in every box. Full sized boxes are sold by all druggists for 50 cents, and no parent should neglect the use of this safe remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles if the child is ailing in any way regarding its food or assimilation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been known for years as the best preparation for all stomach troubles whether in adults or infants.

THE LAW OF THE JAPANESE.

It Is Based on the French Code Making All Men Equal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—The Storrs course of lectures in Yale law school has been opened by K. Hatoyama, the distinguished Japanese lawyer and former legislator, whose subject was the civil code of Japan. Mr. Hatoyama is here to attend the bicentennial of Yale and to receive the degree of LL. D.

Mr. Hatoyama referred to the basis of the Japanese code, taken largely from the basic principles of French code. About three years ago it was adopted. Its workings are therefore new, but its philosophy is regarded as correct. The entire educational system has been reformed and modernized, so the law of the empire has been completely revolutionized.

The Japanese law had grown old and it absolutely lacked unity. The empire has outgrown it. The new code recognized no privileged class, but made all men equal before the courts and the law. Failure to see that fact and to accommodate themselves to it had led to trouble for some foreigners, who claimed special immunity. In the case of some English subjects that led to friction now and then.

ADVICE FOR THE IRISH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A telegram from Cork to the Times says arrangements have been made to hold a monster meeting in connection with the United Irish League at Toomevara, Tipperary, next Sunday. Wm. H. K. Redmond, John Dillon and other members of parliament are to speak.

The Rev. Father Hehir, in addressing his congregation in regard to this meeting, said it was folly to suppose that snapping their fingers at the government would cure Ireland's ills. The main requirement of the Irish people was sobriety. Until Ireland was a sober country neither the league nor any other organization could make the people independent or happy. The growing vice of intemperance was responsible for more misery, destitution and crime among the Irish people than their political disabilities.

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS

WAX TAPER PICKED

HE SHOULD WIN THE FOURTH IN A GALLOP.

PICADOR ALSO IS SELECTED

Bronze Demon, Marque, Kitty Clyde and Hardly Are Other Probable Fair Grounds Winners.

FAIR GROUNDS SELECTIONS.

First race—The Bronze Demon, Miss Golightly, Spinel.

Second race—Marque, Anna Elliott, Crimean.

Third race—Kitty Clyde, Marcy, Gov. Boyd.

Fourth race—Wax Taper, Hilee, Jake Weber.

Fifth race—Picador, Menace, South Breeze.

Sixth race—Hardly, Our Lady, Boot.

There is an opening for a long shot to win the first race Friday afternoon. Of the nine horses which are carded to start Miss Golightly on paper looks to be the best, but she has run some dull races recently, and is by no means as good as she was a month ago.

Militant is a newcomer from Canada, but his record is only fair. Spinel, if he was right, might do the trick, but he is not quite ready yet. The Bronze Demon is the one that may cause a big surprise. He is well bred, being by the famous Tea Tray, and can go the distance.

Sep. 16, in a six and one-half furlong dash at Delmar, he ran a good third to Miss Mae Day and Kindred. Both of these last-named horses can simply run away from anything in the first race and, all the circumstances considered, the Demon has a royal chance to distinguish himself. If Lindsay rides him, it will not be to his advantage.

Sept. 18, Marque defeated such crack 2-year-olds as Wakita, Huntressa and Sambo and, with even break, should capture the purse in the second race. He is certainly the class of the lot engaged and his most dangerous competitors look to be Anna Elliott and Crimean, who may finish in that order.

Kitty Clyde carries top weight in the third event, but she has been packing 107 and 109 in her recent races, and an additional pound or two should not stop her. If Dale rides her it will be worth five pounds to her, and Marcy, with light weight up, and the speedy Gov. Boyd will be her closest attendants at the finish.

Wax Taper must be selected to win the fourth. He has beaten the best horses around New York, carrying all weights, and if he is anywhere near right a victory should only be an exercise gallop for him. The track will suit him also.

Picador ran the fastest mile and an eighth of the season Monday and carried 108 pounds. Friday, he is in with only 100 pounds and how can he be beaten? The only disadvantage he will have Friday afternoon is that Dale cannot ride him as this jockey is unable to do better than 107 pounds. Menace with 101, will probably be the favorite, but that won't make her win.

There are sixteen ancient stagers entered in the last race, the best of whom seems to be Hardly. She is such an inconsistent performer, though, that, instead of winning as she figures to do, she may run last. If she is feeling good, and gets a good ride, she will tow-rope her field and canter home.

The stake race won Thursday by Lady Strathmore proved that at any distance up to a mile she is a better animal than Peaceful or Lunar. It did not prove, however, that she is the best animal at the Fair Grounds, and the probabilities are that that problem will remain unsolved for the year.

According to many competent judges Monograph is the fastest animal racing around St. Louis, but, as he is in the same stable with Lady Strathmore, the public will hardly have a chance to decide whether he or Lady Strathmore is really the best. A race between them at a mile would be an excellent event.

Lunar beat Peaceful Monday easily. Thursday Peaceful beat Lunar just as easy. Such is the glorious uncertainty of the turf. There is hardly a doubt that Peaceful is the best horse, but the daughter of Wadsworth has a large and loyal following who think her almost invincible.

WOMEN'S GOLF HONORS

NOW RESTS ON OUTCOME OF CONTEST

AMONGST FOUR PLAYERS

Miss Curtis and Miss Herron First to Tee Off In Friday's Play, the Eastern Woman Scoring Two Points Over Her Western Rival by the Fourth Hole.

players today in the contest for the national women's championship on the links of the Baltimore Golf Club. Two of these, Mrs. E. A. Manice and Miss Margaret Curtis, were from Massachusetts. Miss Lucy Herron of Cincinnati was the sole survivor of the western contingent, and Miss Genevieve Hecker of the Essex Country Club of New Jersey was the individual in whom the metropolitan district players placed all their hopes of bringing the national honor back to New York.

Opinions as to the outcome of today's matches in the semi-final rounds between Miss Curtis and Miss Herron and Mrs. Manice and Miss Hecker were pretty well divided, as each one of the quartet had a large following of admirers among the assembled golfers.

In addition to the matches for the principal honor, the semi-finals for the consolidation cup were to be decided today and after there was to be a mixed foursome handicap at 18 holes medal play for a silver cup donated by the Baltusrol Club.

The weather conditions were equally as good as on the preceding days of the tournament, and there was a large gathering of golfers around the clubhouse and first tee long before the matches began.

Miss Curtis and Miss Herron were the first to tee off. Miss Griscom acting as caddy for the Bostonian and W. D. Vanderpool doing similar service for the Cincinnati girl. A gallery composed of over three hundred people, the majority of whom were women, folowed the Manice-Hecker match.

Miss Hecker was attended by John Harrison, the professional, and E. A. Manice lookd after his wife's interests and directed her play.

Miss Hecker had the honor, and drove the longer ball, so that Mrs. Manice had to play the odd. Miss Hecker was on the green in three, but took two more to hole out, Mrs. Manice taking six. Miss Hecker was then 1 up. The next two holes were halved in fives and fours. Miss Hecker did the better work on the fourth hole, which she won in 6 to 7. This placed the Metropolitan champion two up.

Miss Hecker got the next in 4 to 5 and was 3 up going to the sixth. Through bad approach play she took 6 for this hole, which Mrs. Manice won in 4. Miss Hecker 2 up again. Playing the seventh Mrs. Manice experienced lots of trouble. She pulled her drive into some trees and topped twice in getting out, only to be bunkered on the very next shot.

Miss Hecker meanwhile was playing steadily, but short on her approach shots. She won the hole in 7 to 8. The eighth was also won by Miss Hecker in 4 to 5 as was also the ninth. This made Miss Hecker 5 up on the turn. Following are the cards of the first nine holes:

Miss Hecker, out 5 5 4 6 4 6 7 4 4—45.
Mrs. Manice, out 6 6 5 4 7 5 4 8 5 5—49.

The match between Miss Herron and Miss Curtis was very evenly contested, both of them going out in 50 strokes each. Following are their cards for the first 9 holes:

Miss Herron, out 7 5 5 7 5 5 6 5 4—50.
Miss Curtis, out 6 6 5 7 5 5 6 6 4—50.

GOSSIP ABOUT PUGILISTS

Charles Haughton, president of the West End Club, announces, that he has matched Dave Barry and Martin Duffy for a lightweight match at the Coliseum Thursday night.

Edward McFarland and John Thronton are looking for matches before a local club. McFarland has a desire to meet Clarence Forbes at 122 pounds, or "Dummy" Schenck. Schenck gave McFarland a good battle for six rounds recently and a longer match between the two should be an attraction. McFarland is at 111 North Ninth street.

The fox of pugilists, Tommy Ryan, lost a decision to George Green at Kansas City Thursday night, the referee giving his opponent the fight on a foul in the sixth round.

Green, who is known as "Young Corbett," had the worst of the battle throughout. Ryan was the aggressor and, on points, had the fight won until the sixth round, when he struck Corbett while the latter was on his knees.

Green had been knocked down and was resting on his knee for the full count when the foul occurred.

The fight was to have lasted ten rounds.

McGovern's next possibility is Ben Jordan of England. Terry has been matched and unmatched so often of late that it is difficult to understand exactly what his engagements are. The latest talk is that Harris, for McGovern, has agreed to fight the Englishman before the Adelphi Club of London, if the latter will agree to the date he has submitted. The club recently announced a purse of $5000 for the fight, but stipulated that it must take place in December. According to the terms, McGovern will receive $1500 additional for training expenses. Harris objects to the club's date, and wants it set for May 31.

A Chicago dispatch says Benny Yanger, the "Tipton Slasher," and Tommy White have signed articles for a 15-round battle before the West End Club at St. Louis during the second week in November. The articles of agreement call for a 15-round bout at 126 pounds at ringside, 50 per cent of the gate receipts to go to the fighters, with winner to take all.

BASEBALL COMMENT

Now you see it and now you don't.

That is the St. Louis American League team as it appears under the skillful prestidigitation of Manager James McAleer.

The public is fed upon hopes and expectations. McAleer is no niggard in his promises and offers plenty of beautiful prospects.

Occasionally, these conflict with telegraphic reports and with the statements of certain persons who are supposed to make up the evanescent thing to be known as the St. Louis American League ball team.

It is coming, says "Jimmy."

It will come with a brass band, Burkett, Wallace, the cream of the Milwaukee team and with stars as substitutes.

But soon Burkett testifies that he has not been signed to his knowledge, and a telegram states that the cream of the Milwaukee team is slipping from the clutch of the American League.

Please, Mr. McAleer, let us have facts. Fancy and sponge cake are nice for a change, but, as a steady diet, they pall.

The American League is certainly making earnest efforts to get everything the National League has in the way of players, even if there is present confusion as to the standing of its St. Louis club. Manager George Davis of the Giants has left the old organization for the new. Davis is a sterling player, and Clark Griffith, who secured him for the White Stockings, at last has capably filled the position at short.

Griffith was not satisfied with the work of Shugart, and was out after the best he could get. He secured, at least, one of the best men in the business. Griffith is also trying to induce Friedman to put an American League team in New York and will withdraw his National club. He certainly has a queer method of diplomacy. To trick a man first and then to attempt to make friends with him is hardly consistent.

Hugh Duffy, who was to be one of the American League's St. Louis team, has cut into McAleer's hopes by jumping to Boston's team of the same organization. Hugh found life at Milwaukee anything but a sinecure and evidently didn't think the St. Louis team was going to be much. Otherwise he surely would have taken a chance.

Perhaps there was more in sight at Boston.

ASSOCIATION GAME ARRANGED

Comiskey's Team Will Open St. Louis Season Sunday Against Picked Football Players.

Charles Comiskey's association football team, a relic of the late National Football League, will open the local association season Sunday in a game at Athletic Park with a picked team from the local organizations.

Comiskey has kept his team intact since the disruption of the ambitious football organization last Saturday and probably will bring it to St. Louis more than once during the coming season.

Benny Govier, formerly a St. Louis player, is leading the eleven. Reports state that it is a strong aggregation and will give the pick of St. Louis a hard game.

Phil Cavanaugh was to have headed the eleven which is to oppose Comiskey's men, but he is laid up with an injured finger and will not be able to participate in the game.

The eleven has not been entirely made up. The local promoters say it will be the best that can be drawn from four teams of the St. Louis League.

Comiskey's team will arrive Sunday morning, accompanied by Comiskey in person. The Chicago baseball manager will kick off the ball in person at the start of the game, on the grounds where, in past years, he and Der Boss President landed the baseball pennant of the American Association for four successive years. Lawrence Reilly will referee the game.

LOCAL GAMES.

St. Louis University vs. High School, at Handlan Park.

C. B. C. vs. West Ends, at the college campus.

Smith Academy vs. Alumni at Pastime Park.

St. Louis University football team was surprised when it went against the Manual Training School eleven Thursday afternoon at Handlan Park. The varsity had no difficulty in winning, but, for a time, it appeared that a large score was beyond the possibilities of the game for it.

In the end they made 31 points to nothing for their opponents.

The surprise came in the first half. The Manual Training School lads were pigmies compared to their opponents, with the exception of one or two line men. When they lined up against the stalwart 'varsity team, it appeared that they could not stand a minute against the Grand avenue crew. However they not only did that, in the first half, but for eight minutes they played hard, fast ball, tackled excellently, held the University for downs and frightened Coach Delaney more than he would like to acknowledge by keeping his team from scoring.

Kieley, Shaw, McDowell and Moran, the latter being Delaney's crack from Worcester, Mass., were all in the game for the 'varsity, too.

In the first half the 'varsity men scored two touch-downs. They were guilty of much playing that might have been dispensed with, and the ends of the Manual line so worried the backs of the 'varsity with good tackling that the members of the latter team resorted to holding and rough work against the youngsters. The interference men of the 'varsity did not scruple to use their hands in protecting the runner, and many of their gains were made past the ends by putting them out in illegal plays.

One man took hold of the arm of a Manual end, on one occasion, and deliberately jerked him out of the way. The fouling did not appear to be noticed by the officials, but it was plain from the lines.

Two of Moran's long runs resulted from such work and the score might have been less with legal playing.

In the second half the light Manual team gave out and could not stand before the rushing of Shaw, Moran and England. The Training School was forced to put in its substitutes, and these did not appear to be up to the strength of the regular team.

Manual's showing will surprise the interscholastic players and the other three elevens will have to extend themselves to get the pennant from it. Its members are fast, nervy, tackle well and play a team game that shows the results of continued practice against Washington University.

Ricker and Berkley are excellent men at the tackling game. They go into the thick of it in the right way. They go low, too, and both damaged the interference of the 'varsity all through the game. But for holding, the damage would have been greater.

Baker, Manual's quarter back, appears to weigh about 108 pounds. He is good, however, and his passing was one of the features of the game. He dropped a runner several times in fine style and, if he was only a little heavier, might be good some day.

St. Louis University, after it started in the second half, could not be stopped. It ran over the Manual lads, as if it had recovered from its fright of the first half.

The team, as is nearly always the case with the 'varsity elevens, is slow in developing. It will do to watch later in the season. Shaw is good and can buck the opposite tackle better than any man now in the game in St. Louis. Moran will be something before the season is over and was good Thursday.

Delaney never hurries the progress of his team. On paper, it is stronger than last year, and will be so in reality by November.

Thursday's lineup was as follows:

St. L. U. (31).	Position.	Manual (0).
Schauvecker-McLea.	Right end.	J. Johnson-Funston-Berkley
Shaw	Right tackle	Brill
Hickey	Right guard	Horner
Johnson	Center	De Wet
Lynn	Left guard	Beckley
Mooney	Left tackle	Burger-True
Pennington	Left end	G. Johnson
McDowell	Quarterback	Baker-Bischoff
Kiley-England	Right halfback	Allendar
Moran	Left half back	Cherbonnier
Ricker	Full back	Ewing

Summary: Touchdowns—Moran (3), Kiley, Shaw, England. Goals kicked—McDowell (1). Referee and umpire—O'Flynn and Robinson. Linesmen—Carten and Tobin. Time of halves—15m.

Local enthusiasts will have their choice of three football games Saturday.

C. B. C. and the West End team will probably furnish the feature game of the day, though the play of Smith against the alumni will be interesting as showing what Smith has up its sleeve for the interscholastic championship.

St. Louis University's game with High School will give a further line on the interscholastic championship, as Manual's score against Delaney's men can be used for comparison.

Washington University goes to Champaign, Ill., to play the University of Illinois. Washington will probably not be reinforced to any extent since its first out, but has had time to rest up since the De Pauw game and doubtless will make a better showing against Champaign than it did against De Pauw.

The line-up has not been settled by Coach Clark yet, but probably 16 players will be taken along to allow for accidents.

Missouri University is discouraged over the prospects of the team for the season. Although many candidates appear for practice the proper material is not available. The defeat by White's Parkville team has taken the spirit out of the team.

There is little reason to expect a championship eleven at Columbia this season. Kansas, though not as strong as formerly, has a fast team and, at the present outlook, it appears certain that the Jayhawkers again will win against the Tigers. It has been six years since the Missouri men deserved that name.

Harvard and Yale have their first hard battles Saturday afternoon. Columbia, last year a strong aggregation and this season a fair one, will go to Cambridge.

Yale goes to Annapolis, where the naval cadets have been preparing to "do things" to Eli's sons. If Annapolis has as strong an eleven as West Point has put in the field Yale will have no snap.

Coach Hogan of the Manual Training School expects to join the Annapolis team. He is looking for an appointment, and hopes to make the team if he gets it.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—W. C. Whitney has bought Endurance by Right. The price is not stated, but it is estimated to be at least $40,000.

John E. Madden purchased her late Wednesday night from J. W. Schorr, and is said to have paid $35,000. When Mr. Whitney heard that Mr. Madden had secured the great filly he immediately made him a liberal advance over the amount paid for her, and Mr. Madden accepted it.

The price paid for Endurance by Right is the largest ever given for a 2-year-old filly in America.

Endurance by Right is insured in Lloyds for $26,000. This is the highest policy ever written on a filly in the world. Fired Over Strikers' Heads.

The first disorder of the transfer drivers' strike on the East Side occurred Thursday afternoon. Taking advantage of the temporary absence of the police a crowd gathered around C. C. Kimbrough of St. Louis, one of the nonunion drivers, and threatened him, and some of them started to climb on his wagon. He fired four shots over the heads of the crowd. The crowd made a rush for him, but he was protected by Officer Shepard, who had arrived, and was taken to the police station. He was later released.

A RALLY IN GRAIN

STRENGTH IN CORN STARTED BOOM IN WHEAT.

RECEIPTS AGAIN HEAVY

Corn Up on Government Report—Wheat Closed With Gain of 1c to 1 1-8c and Corn 1-2c to 3-4c.

Regardless of the heavy primary receipts and the weak export demand wheat made strong gains today, closing from ⅞c to 1@1¼c higher than Wednesday. The advance was due largely to the strength in corn and the firmness of the foreign markets.

The small Argentine shipments of wheat caused a steadier feeling at Liverpool at the opening this morning, with quotations ¼d to ½d up. During the morning a better spot demand developed, causing a further gain of ¼d. Corn opened ¼d to ½d advance on the American government report issued yesterday afternoon. Wheat closed with a gain of ½d and corn ½d. Paris closed off ½@¾c and Antwerp unchanged, while Berlin was up ⅛c and Budapesth ⅝c.

The clearances of wheat and flour today were not so large as usual, being 209,000 bu.

The government crop report, placing the condition of corn at 82.1 per cent, helped to start the boom in corn. But the market got little outside support and met heavy realizing at every rally. The clearances were 77,320 bu. Little export buying was heard of and the market closed with a gain of ⅝c to ½@⅝c.

Oats, after opening up with corn, sold off and closed unchanged from Wednesday.

Talk of light stocks in Chicago and the strength in corn held wheat up.

Heavy rains fell last night in the spring wheat states. The stocks at Minneapolis show an increase of 1,250,000 bu for the week.

The Northwest wheat receipts were again large, Minneapolis and Duluth reported 846 cars, 342 more than a year ago. The movement of winter wheat from the Southwest is falling off rapidly. St. Louis received only 42,491 bu today, compared with 18,482 bu the same date last year.

The primary receipts were swelled by the spring wheat movement to market, showing an increase of 288,667 bu over the receipts of a year ago.

The Argentine wheat shipments were 128,000 bu, compared with 192,000 bu the previous week and 944,000 bu a year ago. The corn shipments were 416,000 bu, compared with 424,000 bu the previous week and 696,000 bu a year ago.

The local market opened with Dec. up ¼@⅝c at 71c. The price ran up to 71¾c and fell back to 71@71¼c. There was some selling of Dec. and buying of May after the opening, but the rally in corn started Dec. up again. The price went steadily to 71¾c and then eased off to 71¾c, closing 1@1⅛c above Wednesday at 71⅝@ 71¾c bid.

Trade in May here was light, but in Chicago there was an excelent demand. After opening at 73¾@74⅛c the market advanced to 74⅝c and sold off to 74⅛c, closing with a gain of ⅞c at 74⅛c bid.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis today were 42,491 bu, compared with 138,482 bu a year ago. Of these 3107 sacks and 40 cars were local and 1 car through, compared with 3362 sacks and 158 cars local and 5 cars through the same date a year ago.

Receipts of wheat at primary points today were 1,216,667 bu, as compared with 930,000 bu same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth were 846 cars, as compared with 506 cars same date last year.

Dec. wheat sold today at 71c to 71¼c, 71@ 71⅛c, 71¼c, 71@71⅛c, 71⅛c, 71⅛c, 71⅛c, 71¼@ 71⅜c, 71⅜c, 71⅛@71⅛c, 71⅛c, 71⅛c, 71⅜c, 71¼@ 71⅝c and 71⅝c.

May sales: 74⅜@74½c, 74⅜c, 74⅝c and 74½c.

The government report placing the condition of corn at 82.1, less than a point above the September report, was a great surprise to grain men. It had been predicted that the report would show improvement of about 5 points. The report indicates a crop of about 1,343,385,000 bu. It is 30 points below the average for 10 years and the lowest average on record. It is believed that the report will tempt the farmers to hold their corn for higher prices.

The advance in the condition shows very little improvement. One noticeable feature of the report is the improvement in the surplus states, offsetting the losses in the small southern states. The report did not encourage heavy speculation. Trader's prefer to wait until the husking returns come in. It is generally believed that those returns will show very little merchantable corn in the surplus states.

The receipts at St. Louis were moderate, being 83,200 bu, compared with 116,715 bu a year ago. The primary receipts were 209,000 bu, against 944,000 bu a year ago. The corn shipments were 416,000 bu, compared with 424,000 bu the previous week and 696,000 bu a year ago.

A PROVEN THEORY
MICROCIDE.
Why are we so rapidly becoming a nation of baldheads? Simply from dandruff, scalp diseases and functional disorders of the scalp. There are too many bald heads and too many gray heads in the world. Simply because people do not give proper attention to their scalps. Hundreds of you will read this with surprise, but many of you know to your sorrow that it easier to preserve the hair than to restore it. Diseases of the scalp are contagious. If a wife is afflicted, the husband and children may also become infected. Scalp diseases are almost always of a parasitic nature. Microcide is a double remedy, a parasiticide, as well as a scalp and hair food. The parasiticide kills the parasite and removes the fungi. The food nourishes the hair, strengthens it, builds it up. They work together. Microcide is also a fine hair dressing, making the hair soft and silky, stops the hair falling out and removes life dandruff at once. Free treatment at our office. Mail orders promptly filled. For sale by druggists. One dollar per bottle. Microcide Chemical Co., 309 Carleton bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

THE SENATOR WORE NO SHIRT

Amusing Happening to Mr. Beveridge While He Talked "Neatness" to 700 School Teachers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HONOLULU, Oct. 3, via San Francisco, Oct. 11.—The Rev. W. M. Massie of Kauai, who has just returned from Manila, tells of an amusing incident at the expense of Senator Beverage. The senator was addressing 700 school teachers who had just reached Manila on the transport Thomas. His theme was the duty of teachers to inculcate neatness and proper ideas of dress among the people. He dwelt on the importance of men shaving every day and of women doing up their hair, and of general neatness of apparel.

The senator himself looked very natty in a white duck suit of military cut, buttoned up to his chin. But as he indulged in vigorous gestures a button of his coat flew off, and a cuff fell among his audience, revealing that he wore no shirt except a thin undershirt and no collar at all.

A man leaving St. Louis at 8:50 p. m. today will reach Joplin at 7:55 tomorrow morning, provided his ticket reads via the Frisco system.

COUNCILMEN TOOK BRIBES.

Charges Made to New Orleans Mayor of Positive Nature.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 11.—City Councilman P. J. McMahon sought a conference with Mayor Capdeville yesterday and stated that he knew of two cases of bribe taking among his colleagues. He said that one man had gotten $2500 cash for putting through a switching ordinance and another $500 for his influence in passing another measure. Mayor Capdeville at once referred McMahon's information to the Council. The Council will refer the charges to the public order committee and the committee will call for the names of the bribe takers. It will then be up to McMahon to prove his charges.

SORES AND ULCERS.

Sores and Ulcers never become chronic unless the blood is in poor condition—is sluggish, weak and unable to throw off the poisons that accumulate in it. The system must be relieved of the unhealthy matter through the sore, and great danger to life would follow should it heal before the blood has been made pure and healthy and all impurities eliminated from the system. S.S.S. begins the cure by first cleansing and invigorating the blood, building up the general health and removing from the system all morbid, effete matter. A CONSTANT DRAIN UPON THE SYSTEM. When this has been accomplished the discharge gradually ceases, and the sore or ulcer heals. It is the tendency of these old indolent sores to grow worse and worse, and eventually to destroy the bones. Local applications, while soothing and to some extent alleviate pain, cannot reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does, and no matter how apparently hopeless your condition, even though your constitution has broken down, it will bring relief when nothing else can. It supplies the rich, pure blood necessary to heal the sore and nourish the debilitated, diseased body.

Mr. J. B. Talbert, Lock Box 245, Winona, Miss., says: "Six years ago my leg from the knee to the foot was one solid sore. Several physicians treated me and I made two trips to Hot Springs, but found no relief. I was induced to try S. S. S., and it made a complete cure. I have been a perfectly well man ever since."

SSS is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known—contains no poisonous minerals to ruin the digestion and add to, rather than relieve your sufferings. If your flesh does not heal readily when scratched, bruised or cut, your blood is in bad condition, and any ordinary sore is apt to become chronic.

Send for our free book and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge for this service.

GIRL TOOK POISON

MISS BRENDICKS SOUGHT DEATH IN HER DESPONDENCY.

BUT HER LIFE WAS SAVED

She Quarreled With Girl Friends and Lost Her Lover to One of Them.

Because she had quarrelled with three girl friends and had lost a lover to another, Miss Clara Brendicks, 18 years old, attempted suicide Thursday night at 3226 Chouteau avenue, by swallowing poison.

She was discovered in time to save her life. Antidotes were administered by Dr. H. H. Barnes, and she was taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. Bowles, 3125 La Salle street.

The girls with whom Miss Brendicks quarrelled are Misses Maude, Irene and Minnie Elby of 3226 Chouteau avenue. She had visited them for some time after her mother remarried.

Miss Brendicks had thus come into possession of a photograph of Miss Minnie Elby.

At a party one evening a young man, a mutual friend of both, begged to be allowed to retain this photograph until the next evening.

It is alleged that he was ungallant enough to have the presentment of the young woman, who is pretty, copied on buttons, which he distributed among her admirers, and one of which he himself wore.

Although Miss Brendicks disclaimed any part in the circulation of the buttons, bad feeling grew up between her and the Misses Elby, and she left their home to visit the Misses Ward, who lived on the floor above, and in whose rooms she took the poison.

Since then the Misses Elby have not relented, Miss Brendicks says.

To crown her woes, an admirer who had been showing her many attentions, called on her at the Ward residence and became acquainted with Miss Mamie Ward. Miss Brendicks is fair, while Miss Ward is a brunette. Both are pretty, but the young man was won away from the blue eyes and the fluffy yellow hair of Miss Brendicks to the jet lashes and somber locks of Miss Ward.

The Misses Elby, Miss Brendicks says, were not slow to learn this and took no pains to conceal their satisfaction thereat.

Three days ago, they, having heard that Miss Brendicks had made disparaging remarks about them, called at the Ward residence and asked Miss Brendicks to the door. They were accompanied by three young men.

Miss Maude Elbe recited their grievance, the truth of which was testified to by the young men, and Miss Brendicks was treated to such a storm of remonstrance and reproach that she fled before it and locked herself in her room.

This was the culmination of her trouble and she brooded over them until Thursday night, weeping and taking little nourishment.

At 8 o'clock Miss Ward heard her groaning and found her lying unconscious on her bed with an empty poison box by her side.

Miss Brendicks was much improved Friday morning, though very weak. She told the Post-Dispatch that she was sorry for what she had done, but she had been ill and despondent over her troubles, which had come to her through no fault of her own.

THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD JOHNNIE RYAN

WHO STABBED HIS PLAYMATE

WILL BE TRIED FOR ASSAULT TO KILL

Johnnie Ryan, a 13-year-old schoolboy, of 834 South Eighth street, sobbed all Wednesday night in his cell at the Soulard Street Police Station because he feared that the stab he inflicted on his comrade, Phillip Kessel, would prove fatal.

Johnnie Ryan is charged in a warrant issued Thursday afternoon with assault to kill, and he and Johnnie were chums before the quarrel. Phillip's wound is serious.

Phil Kessel lives at 719 Chouteau avenue.

One of Our Ideals Shattered.

There seems no hope for one of our American ideals, writes Walter Wellman in Collier's Weekly. We have long been proud of the fact that our presidents are of the people and that they may mingle with the people without fear of harm. But this fearless practice, miscellaneous hand-shaking, indiscriminate receptions, unnecessary exposure of the life of the chief of the nation, must cease. So all have agreed in the councils at Buffalo. It is painful to give up a cherished national ideal, but better that than a recurrence of such a crime as that of Friday, Sept. 6.

JUDGE DEFINED DRUNKENNESS

To Be Subject to Fine the Offender Must Be Either Overcome, Stupified or Frenzied.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 11.—Judge Dewey refused yesterday to fine a man for drunkenness because he was neither "overcome, stupefied, nor frenzied by drinking alcoholic liquors." Every one, except police and prohibitionists seem to hail the decision as wise. A prominent lawyer said: "It would be well for the police to read the decision of Judge Dewey, which is the best ever given in this state on the crime of drunkenness. In England, France and Scotland the police are instructed to endeavor to assist one who is partially under the influence of liquor. It is a matter of comment among foreigners who visit this city that the police of Boston seem to have a desire to arrest every one who comes in sight, and that they use no discretion. It is high time they were brought to understand what the law is."
